UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—The day of dedication (Thursday) of Penn State University's new $6 million poultry center became a day of celebration and reminiscing for the crowd of university officials and almni, governmental representatives, and industry leaders present to see Pennsylvania Gov. Robert Casey and Penn State President Joab Thomas cut the ceremonial ribbon to mark the begining of a new era of poultry education and research.

The new 50,000 square-foot complex consists of six buildings designed to enable Penn State faculty and students to conduct "cutting edge studies" in support of Pennsylvania's $500 million poultry industry.

"Good things are worth waiting for," said Dr. William Weaver, head of the poultry science department. "I remember we started discussions in the 1960s but now the waiting is over. It's time to start anew with a facility we are all proud of."

Paul Hann, board chairman of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation agreed. "I'm excited about what this facility means to present and future Penn State students," Hann said. "And what it means to future employees of these future Penn State graduates, and what it can mean to the consumers and the people who make their living in this exciting and dramatic industry. This is a culmination of 20 plus years of effort by many people. I applaud this accomplishment and LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "All those years of showing sheep paid off," said Mark Tracy of Elizabethtown. Tracy was referring to the $1,000 scholarship that he received to pursue his interest in animal bioscience at Penn State University.

His exposure to agriculture through 4-H and helping with farming on the family's 100 acres influenced his choice of studies and enabled him to apply for the Lancaster County Farm and Home Foundation scholarships.

Tracy was one of seven county high school seniors awarded the $1,000 scholarships on Tuesday night at the Farm and Home Center. Recipients must pursue a career in agriculture or home economics, and must excel scholastically, in leadership, and in extracurricular activities.

The scholarship monies are derived from the trust fund set up by the late Elmer L. Esbenshade, 29 years ago. The number of scholarships given varies from year to year depending on the interest earned from the trust.

Recipients of the $1,000 scholarships include the following:

Jeffery Balmer, the son of Nancy Balmer of Lititz, is a Warwick High School student. He plans to study agribusiness at Penn State. Jeffrey said his career decision

SRBC Proposes Rules For Water Project Review

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Those agricultural producers within the Susquehanna River Basin who run large livestock operations and "consume" more than 20,000 gallons of water per day, and those who irrigate crops using at least the same amount of water may be required to make up the difference.

That's if a final draft of proposed rules governing water use in the basin eventually becomes law.

The Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) last week approved a draft of proposed rules which seek to reorganize, consolidate and provide consistency among a series of rules that the multi-state-pact commission uses to review water-use projects in the Susquehanna River Basin.

The approval of the regulations for proposal was made by the SRBC during its most recent meeting, held May 12 at the Treadway Inn, in Owego, N.Y.

As part of those proposed rules, those in the basin who "consume" a certain amount of water, and are in a position to continue to need to do so during drought conditions, will be forced to "compensate" the agency for the water.

"Compensation" in this case is not specifically defined, but will relate to how the commission can be assured that adequate water flows will continue to be available in the river for emergency and life-supporting needs, and environmental stability.

Compensation could be in the form of a storage pond, or lake, or it could be in the form of cash. The cash rate, if that method is determined by the water user to be the NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to higher in the Northeast and Midwest, unchanged elsewhere. The market tone was fully steady to firm. National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, May 18, 1994

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY DRY WEATHER CONCERNS SEEM TO BE THE MAJOR FACTOR SUPPORTING GRAIN AND SOY- BEAN PRICES. WHEAT PRICES RECEIVED SOME PRESSURE, HOWEVER, FROM GOOD WINTER WHEAT CONDITIONS AND SLOW EXPORT DEMAND. WHEAT MIXED. CORN 1 TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. SORGHUM 4 TO 6 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 19 TO 21 CENTS HIGHER. WHEAT CROPS ARE REPORTED IN GOOD CONDITION IN MIDWEST AND SOUTHERN PLAINS STATES AND SPRING WHEAT SEEDING IS ABOUT 78 PERCENT COMPLETE. HARVEST PRESSURE LIMITED WHEAT PRICE ADVANCES. COMBINES READY TO MOVE INTO OKLAHOMA IN THE HARD RED WINTER WHEAT COUNTRY. THE MAIN SUPPORT TO WHEAT PRICES CAME FROM SPILLOVER STRENGTH IN CORN AND BEAN PITS AND FUND BUYING. GOOD DEMAND FOR MILLING QUALITY WHEAT PUSHED MINNEAPOLIS PRICES HIGHER. CORN PLANTING IS WELL ABOVE NORMAL IN MOST AREAS AND AROUND 80 PERCENT COMPLETE OVERALL. WON'T TAKE LONG TO FINISH THE SOYBEANS NOW, IOWA LEADING THE NATION WITH 60 PERCENT OF THEIR BEANS IN THE GROUND. MOISTURE IS VERY IMPORTANT TO ALREADY PLANTED CROPS BUT FARMERS WANT TO FINISH SEEDING AHEAD OF SCATTERED RAINS. HOWEVER, A DRY CROP OUTLOOK IS FORECAST THIS YEAR (WHICH IS NORMAL FOR THIS TIME OF YEAR) AND TRADERS CONCERNS SPURRED AGRESSIVE FUND BUYING.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 23-29, 1994

FULL FLOWER MOON, MAY 24.

WHITSUNTIDE

Whit Sunday, the seventh Sunday after Easter (known in this country as Pentecost), is the traditional time for baptisms. ("Whit" a corruption of "white," refers to the white baptismal garments.) It's also a time of festivals in many European countries. Festivities often continue through the week (known as Whitsuntide) and in many places Whit Monday is a public holiday. Here's an interesting Whit Monday ceremony dating back to 1675. In All Saints Church, St. Ives, England, a bequest providing Bibles for poor children of the parish required winning them at a dice game. Six Bibles are awarded annually, although in recent years the games have been moved from the altar to a "more suitable" place.

And once, or twice, to throw the dice / Is a gentlemanly game, / But he does not win who plays with Sin / In the secret House of Shame. — Oscar Wilde

TIP OF THE WEEK

Before frying or sautéing food, remove from the refrigerator and bring to room temperature.

EARTHWISE

With the last frost a hazy memory, it's time to store those woolens. You can discourage moths without resorting to mothballs. Cedar, the traditional alternative, is available in all sorts of shapes and sizes (balls, blocks, butterflies!) or as an oil. Lavender is a good, but mild deterent. Try mixing it with rosemary, tansy and peppermint to increase effectiveness. Cloves or bay leaves can be scattered among clothing or secured in cheese cloth packets.

YANKEE COLE SLAW

- 1 small cabbage, shredded
- 3 sticks celery, chopped
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard
- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg beaten
- salt and pepper
- 1 apple, cored and chopped
- 1/2 cup sour cream

Combine cabbage and celery. Mix mustard with 1 tablespoon vinegar. Heat remaining vinegar to boil; stir in mustard, sugar, egg, salt and pepper. Cook over low heat, stirring until thick. Pour hot sauce over cabbage mix; well and chill. Stir in apple and sour cream just before serving.

Makes 6 servings

OPINION

Improve Agriculture Base

The reasons for the continuance of depressed prices to the United States Agriculture producers are becoming increasingly clearer to everyone. United States producers are being told to produce at world market prices or get out of business.

It's unbelievable that the mentality of the food policy makers in this country has deteriorated so much that they feel a large amount of the American food supply can and should be imported from foreign countries.

Under the proposed GATT agreement the American dairy farmer will become one of the sacrificial lambs.

Our dairy farmers are continually being told by some dairy and government leaders that GATT will open up all of these tremendous foreign markets for our dairy products. In reality the agreement calls for far more dairy imports into the United States with only limited amounts of increased exports.

The National Hoards Dairymen Journal now agrees the GATT agreement could cost the United States Dairy farmer a reduction in milk prices of nearly 75¢ per cwt.

The main supporters of the so-called Self-Help Bill fall in the same category with the trade negotiators for GATT. Neither the proposed Self-Help Program or the proposed GATT agreement will solve the plight of the American Dairy Farmer; nor will the problems being experienced by many other agriculture producers be lessened.

In the beginning, the amounts of manufactured dairy products coming into the United States as a result of GATT will not seriously erode the manufactured dairy market in this country; however, what will happen will be worse. The imports coming in will place a downward pressure on the manufactured dairy market which will depress all class prices to dairy farmers as the further depressed prices take place with our dairymen; the result will be an increasing number forced out of business. This could create a dependency for the United States to even import more dairy products.

The American farmer can no longer be expected to produce the bulk of the American food on 1979 prices. No other section of our economy operates on 1979 prices. It's up to the American farmer to immediately let his agricultural leaders and congress know what really has to be done to save and improve the agriculture base of this country. — Arden Tewksbury, Progressive Organization

Now Is The Time

To Update Immunizations

The recent case of tetanus in Lancaster County reminds us the importance of keeping our immunizations current.

Organisms that cause tentus, polio, diptheria, and measles are always present in the environment looking for an opportunity to strike. Tentus causing bacteria is present everywhere around us — soil, bushes, trees, rocks, etc. Once introduce through a cut or wound, the bacteria causes life threatening situation by locking the jaws.

These and other dreaded disease may prevented by vaccinations. If you do not remember when you had your last tentus shot, schedule one this week with your doctor. Review your family vaccination schedule with your doctor and make sure all the proper vaccinations are received by any family member.

If cost is a factor, many hospitals offer free or very low cost vaccinations. Talk with your doctor and make sure everyone in your family is properly vaccinated for tentus, polio, and other important diseases.

To Clean And Service Fans

This past week I had the opportunity to check poultry house fans for amount of air they were moving. The 36 identical fans were producing anywhere from 2,000 cubic feet per minute (cfm) to 9,000 cfm per minute. For most fans the partially closed louvers were reducing each fan capacity by 40 percent.

With the cool spring, this reduced fan capacity was not hurting egg production. However, if left unattended, it would cause severe egg production drop and probably higher hen mortality this summer.

In addition, by not servicing the fans now, the farmer was spending at least 40 percent more for electricity. Some areas that needed attention were correcting partially closed louvers, tightening fan belts, replacing worn motors, and replacing worn pulleys.

Now is the time to check all fans and make necessary repairs and adjustments. Also, do not forget to regularly blow the dust off fans and louvers.

To Ventilate Dairy Barns In Summer

According to Glenn Shirk, dairy barns may be a nice place to keep cows on a hot summer day — that is, if the barn is properly ventilated. The barn provides cows shade, easy access to fresh feed and water and a clean comfortable place to lie down.

Tiestall barns may be tunnel ventilated. A 36- to 40-foot wide tiestall barn requires four 48 inch fans in one end of the barn with all the air inlets located at the opposite end of the barn. You will need two and a half square feet of inlet area for every 1,000 cfm fan capacity.

For four 48 inch fans, you will need an inlet of 5 feet wide across the full width of the stable or its equivalent.

Provisions should be made to ventilate the barn in the case of a power failure. Shirk says that another way to force fresh air into the barn and create a breeze around the head and shoulder area of cows is to rely on a properly designed pressurized duct system.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "The reason people are successful is not by how much they talk, but by how attentively they listen."

THE ILLUSION OF FREEDOM

THE ILLUSION OF FREEDOM

Background Scripture:
Galatians 5
Devotional Reading:
I Timothy 6:10-12

Somewhere I read that after World War II, when India was successful in obtaining its independence from the British Empire, thousands of Indians attempted to ride the railroads of India without tickets. They had seriously misunderstood what freedom is.

Don't most of us?

In our childhood and adolescent years we yearn for our freedom from parental control. When at last that day arrives, we believe ourselves to be "free at last." Looking back on that day, some of us can see that that was an illusion. Actually, all childhood and adolescence is a process of growing free of control by others. But we are seriously mistaken if we think that shedding parental control makes us truly free. During these years of "growing up" we may become increasingly under the control of our peers. And, freed of the legal control of our parents, we may lose our newly-found freedom to our own appetites. Thinking we are "free at last," we may be more in bondage than before.

THE YOKE AGAIN

That's why Paul's admonition to the Galatians is so timely today: "For freedom Christ has set us free; stand fast therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery" (5:1). That's the tough part: not submitting again "to a yoke of slavery." The fact is, something has to be in control of our life. Someone has to be in the driver's seat. Otherwise there would be complete anarchy and we would never achieve anything. I don't mean "achieve" being President of the United States or a world-famous entertainer, I mean we could not achieve even the simplest tasks of functioning in our society.

So, the only question is who or what we put in our driver's seat. Paul suggests that there is a higher and lower self in each of us. This lower self he often speaks of as "the flesh," a reference not so much to our physical bodies as to the selfish, self-indulgent, debilitating drives of our human nature. There is also a higher self in each of us and Paul usually indicates this reality as "Spirit," that which lifts us to our highest potential. So, we can hand over control of our lives to our hormones and self-indulgent desires, or we can put the Spirit in the driver's seat.

WHO'S IN CHARGE?

Now, the interesting thing about this choice is that, if we give ourselves over to our appetites, we are no longer in control of our lives. We are slaves to our own hormones. We are not free because we have chosen to be dominated by something which is guaranteed to affect our ultimate destruction. How strange, then, that some people think of this as "freedom." If, on the other hand, we put the Spirit in charge of our lives, we are free to become our best selves. For freedom is not the ability to do what we want, but the power to do what is best for us, our highest good.

So Paul counsels us, "For you were called to freedom, brethren; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love be servants of one another" (5:13). The highest freedom is to serve others, not because we have to, but because we choose to. Any other image of freedom is an illusion.

So Jesus was a truly free man. What about you?

To: All Hershey Equipment Employees
From: Donald C. Hershey
Subject: Big Dutchman Outperforms Competitors

After tabulating the results of many layer flocks nationwide, we now have positive proof that Big Dutchman systems outperform all major competing systems.

Unlike what competition has been claiming with absolutely no proof, we have all the facts to back up our statements.

Spread the word! Anyone considering a new building or remodeling an older house can be assured that Big Dutchman offers these advantages.

★ More Eggs Per Bird
★ Larger Eggs
★ Less Electrical Expense
★ Better Feed Conversion
★ Less Mortality
★ Cleaner Eggs

All these facts mean that a Big Dutchman system installed by Hershey will save money in operating expenses. The contract grower also receives a larger bonus payment!

Results are not from some small test house but are based on a blend of results from coast to coast, north to south.

DON'T WASTE YOUR MONEY!

More Eggs Per Bird And Better Feed Conversion Puts Money In Your Pocket!

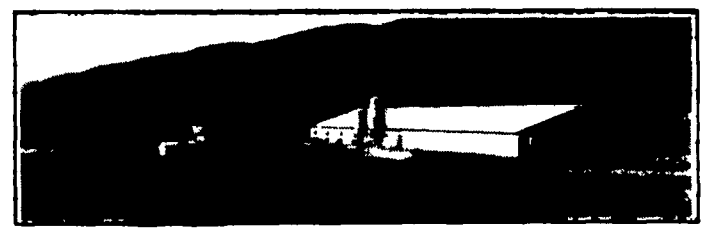
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"

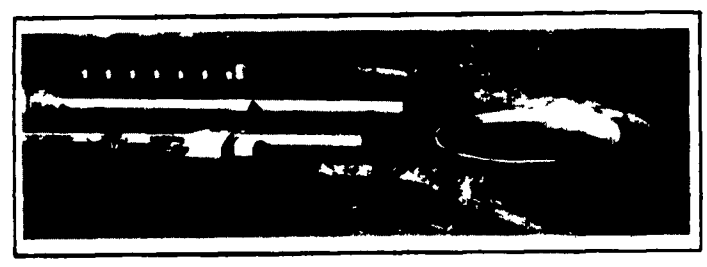
Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay ons, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity fliprail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.



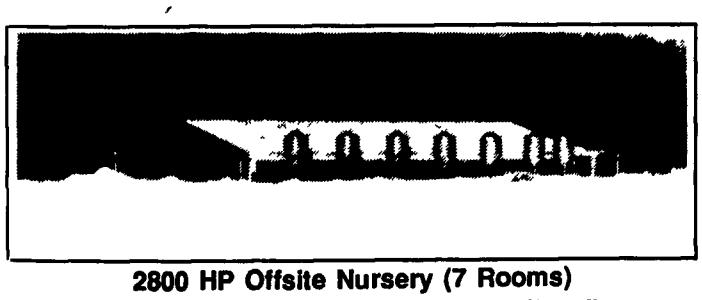
300 Sow Farrow - Feeder Pig Unit

CONFINEMENT STALLS

Developed in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x86")



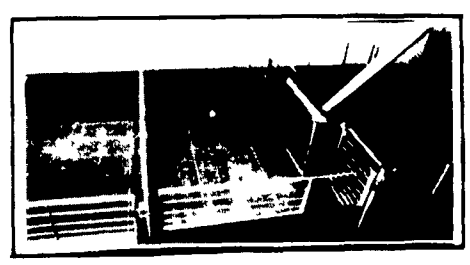
1200 Sow Farrow-Feeder Pig Unit



2800 HP Offsite Nursery (7 Rooms)
(Pull Plug, Preferated Ceiling Ventilated)

NURSERY PENNING

Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel feet on penning eliminate corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.



2000 Head Finisher (2 Rooms)
(Deep Pit, Tunnel Ventilated)

FINISHING PENNING

Standard stainless steel feet and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

Penn Staters Celebrate

realize this is just the begining of a new era of poultry research and education at Penn State."

Lamartine Hood, dean of Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, called this "an important milestone to mark what is a new begining."

"We now have new capacity to conduct scientific inquiry in all the process of producing poultry for the tables of American citizens. This fine facility is essential to this challenge. The on-going labor of talented scientists to provide the knowledge to benefit this industry is so important to our citizens and the commonwealth.

"It's clear that the bounty we enjoy today is based on an on-going committment to agricultural research by the public sector, a system that is unparalleled anywhere in the world. The land grant universities, of which Penn State is Pennsylvania's land grant university, and USDA conduct 95 percent of the agricultural research in this country. It's been a historical commitment and has created a food system where consumers spend only 10 cents of each dollar of their disposable income for food. We have a very cheap and high quality food supply in this country and it is clearly a result of the research that has been carried out over the years."

Before introducing Gov. Casey, President Thomas said the new poultry education and research center reflects the University's historic partnership with Pennsylvania. "We are delighted that Governor Casey joined us to underscore the continuing significance of this relationship," Thomas said. "This project was one of the early releases of funds he in his administration signed.

"This reminds me a little of the age old question which comes first the chicken or the egg?" Thomas said. "Because its difficult to tell which comes first, a vigorous enterprise or a vigorous institution of higher education. As the Pennsylvania poultry industry and Penn State's poultry science program show, the two thrive together. It's this mutually supportive relationship between enterprise and education we are celebrating here today."

Gov. Casey introduced his remarks with a little humor saying that probably no one was more happy than Joe Paterno and the Penn State football team about the new facility built at the end of North University Drive further away from the main campus because they (Paterno and the team) have had to live beside the chickens for 30 years.

But seriously, Casey said "It is a significant day for poultry production which is an important component of our number one industry, agriculture. This dedication of a state-of-the-art facility to the arsenal of this great institution stands for many things including a committment to the agricultural community of our state.

History Of Poultry Science At Penn State

The first instruction in poultry at the Pennsylvania State College was provided in 1895 by Professor of Agriculture George C. Watson, who taught part of a five-hour weekly lecture course in Animal Industry. Professor Watson published a textbook entitled Farm Poultry in 1901. T. I. Mairs, who was named assistant professor of animal industry in 1902, taught poultry husbandry from 1907 to 1909. In 1908, J. W. Clark was the first Penn State professor to be appointed instructor in poultry husbandry, followed by H. W. Jackson, 1909-1912; D. E. Warner, 1912-13; M. C. Kilpatrick, 1912-14; F. B. Crooks, 1914-18; and L. G. Kleinschmidt, 1915-19. On September 15, 1916, Professor H. C. Knandel instituted the Poultry Extension Department.

The Department of Poultry Husbandry was established at Penn State on July 1, 1920, by Professor H. Clyde Knandel, who served as department head until 1944. He established a full course of undergraduate study in poultry husbandry, as well as annual eight-week poultry short courses. During his administration, several laying and colony houses were built for research and student instruction, culminating on October 27, 1938, with the dedication of a large new service building and instructional laying house. The Penn State poultry farm at that time represented an investment of approximately $200,000. In 1958, a separate Turkey Research Farm was constructed.

Professor Ernest W. "Beanie" Callenbach was named department head in 1944, serving until 1957, when he was succeeded by Dr. Arthur J. G. Maw. During Dr. Maw's administration, the Department of Poultry Husbandry became part of the Division of Animal Science and Industry along with the Departments of Animal Science, Dairy Science, Entomology, and Veterinary Science. In 1963, the Department of Poultry Husbandry was renamed the Department of Poultry Science.

In 1966, Dr. Kenneth Goodwin assumed the poultry science department's headship. In that same year, Poultry Extension was integrated into the department, and the Poultry Husbandry curriculum became part of a newly established Animal Science and Industry curriculum. Poultry Science was made a cooperative member of a new Division of Food Science and Industry, which included Dairy Science, Animal Science, and Horticulture.

When a separate Department of Food Science was created in 1976, the animal industry curriculum was replaced by separate curricula offered in the Departments of Dairy and Animal Science, Veterinary Science, and Poultry Science. These three departments participated in the newly formed Animal Bioscience curriculum. In 1978, since faculty members were supervising most of their doctoral students in the Intercollege Graduate Programs established in Physiology, Nutrition, Genetics, and Ecology, the Ph.D. program in Poultry Science was discontinued.

Dr. Herbert S. Siegel became head of the poultry science department in 1984. Plans were already under way to obtain funding for construction of the Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, including new greenhouses; remodeling and expansion of the dairy research farm; and the construction of a new poultry research facility. Contracts were approved in 1991, and construction of the Poultry Education and Research Center began in 1992.

Dr. William D. Weaver, Jr., was named head of the department in 1991. Plans are under way to combine undergraduate instructional programs in poultry, animal, and veterinary sciences into an Animal Sciences curriculum with Science, Agribusiness, and Production options. Faculty in the poultry science department will continue to supervise students in the intercollege graduate programs in Animal Science, Genetics, Operations Research, Nutrition, and Physiology.

The poultry industry in Pennsylvania is the leading producer of poultry and poultry products in the Northeastern United States, and monetarily is the second leading producer of agricultural products in the state. The mission of the Department of Poultry Science is to develop and conduct programs of excellence in teaching, research, and public service to benefit the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the nation. These programs are carried out within the department and in cooperation with other University units.

Pasture Field Walks Offers Informal, Indepth View

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — About 40 people interested in dairy pasturing Thursday attended the first of a series of dairy pasture walks in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Held at the Lancaster city-edge farm of Harold and Doris Fritz, whose son Jack is in charge of the pasturing operation, participants got a look at the effects of a conversion farm, in which the Fritz's herd of Holsteins was switched to pasturing last year.

Walking through fields which had previously been used for traditionally harvested grain and forage crops, the Fritzes, Jack and brother Tim, who is a Penn State Extension agent, discussed the different mixes of legumes, grasses and in some cases Puna chicory that the no-longer tilled fields were sowed to.

Fritz's have 135 cows to 140 cows produce an average of about 23,000 pounds of milk and didn't drop production when going on pasturing last year.

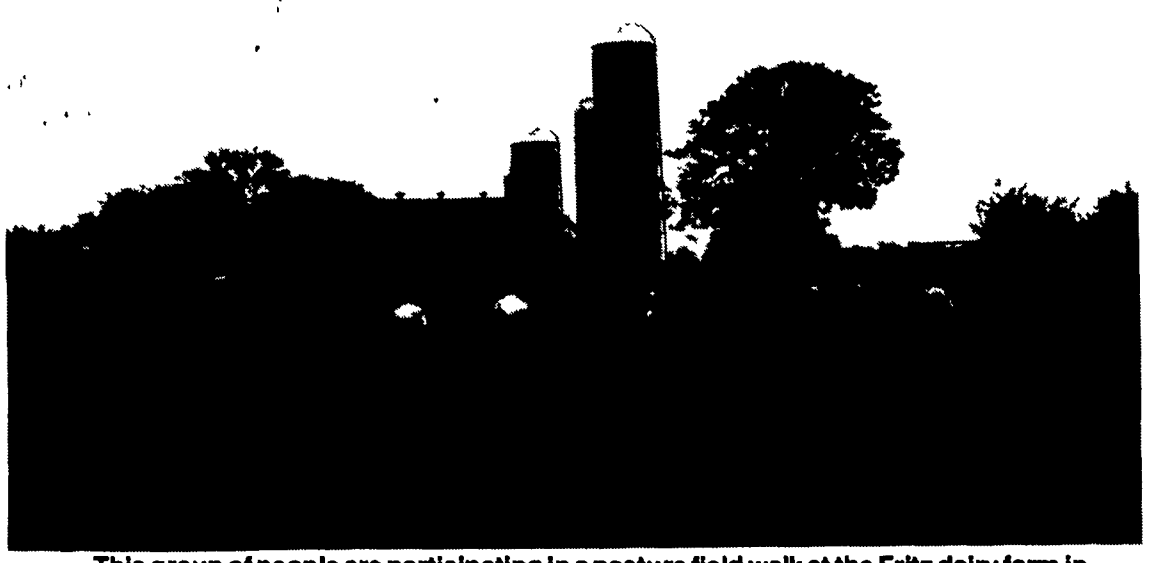
The cows are also fed a totally mixed ration, while in the barn where they are milked in 35 tie stalls. But the Fritzes, escpecially Jack, commented on the increased ability to detect heats, the improved cleanliness of the cows, the ability to control cattle traffic with "spider" electric fencing and spools (a type of fencing system that provides easily movable, and durable fencing), and the apparent preferences of the cows.

The Fritzes don't need to spread manure, since the cows are pastured, and the rest from the barns is composted. However, they did talk about the impact of manure in pastures and the influence it has in causing cows to reject areas of feed.

According to the Fritzes, a large part of the pasturing system is timing — getting the proper number of cattle in the proper sized area when the pasture is ready, not too early, but definetly not too late in the plants' development.

Basically, the mixes the Fritz's use constitute a "salad" of forage, with each field sown slightly different as they test the growth and compatability of different plants in the same fields.

They use a nutritionist and veterinarian in their operation and the the nutritionist, Tom Nauman, said that they have been testing the pastures for nutritional content by taking representative samples prior to grazing, and they have found protein content to be close to 25 percent.



This group of people are participating in a pasture field walk at the Fritz dairy farm in Lancaster. There are in fields that had previously been traditional harvest crop and grain fields, converted to grass and legume mixed plants.

This water wagon serves as the portable water source in the pasturing strategy at the Fritz farm in Lancaster. Jack Fritz says that using a portable system is best because it doesn't create environmental health risk areas in pastures, as permanent water sites do. They also said that after fencing off a stream and giving the cows only water they know is clean has lead to an increase in health among the herd. Many diseases, including Johne's can be transmitted via natural, unprotected and untested water sources. The Fritzes said safe, dependable natural water for cattle is a scarce commodity, and they eliminate many risks using the portable system from a known water supply.

This is what the cows in pasture drink from at the Fritz farm. A 35-gallon portable waterer has a float valve and is attatched via water hose to a larger portable reservior of water.

While that can be considered to be a somewhat high level of protein and was cause for some concern because the veterinarian thought the risk of developing reproductive problems might occur, the Fritz's said that they have not experience such a thing.

The 12 pastures are a mix of old pasture and former crop fields. The lack of apparent organic matter in the soil indicated converted crop fields and the Fritzes explained that they expect that in a few years, when populations of soil microbes and worms can be built to natural levels or more, they would get better benefit from the pasturing system, and have faster breakdown of manure in the fields.

They noted that manure in the converted crop fields lasted longer and seemed to cause more rejection problems than in the old pastures, where soil microbes and worm populations were normal.

Despite some morning rain and a constant drizzle, the group spent several hours with the Fritz's and not only asked questions, but also provided their own insight into finer points of pasturing techniques and management.

Seeding rates, successes with establishing certain grass species, along with sharing numerous observations about how well certain techniques converted from theory to practice were among the topics discussed during the walks.

But the Fritz's pasture walk was only one of three scheduled for the southeast.

Sponsored by the extension service and with the help of host farms, Tim Fritz designed the educational series as an one-day-per-month activity.

The next pasture walk is scheduled for June 16 at the Lee and Gail Reinford farm in Montgomery County, where Tim Fritz is an extension agent.

According to a flier on the walks, the Reinfords milk 85 head and have been pasturing for the past three years. To get to the farm from Schwenksville, follow Rt. 73 east for about 1.5 miles, turn left onto Cross Road. Follow along Cross Road for about a tenth of a mile, and turn left onto Garges Road. The farm is on top of the hill, on the right hand side of the road.

The last one of the summer through this program is scheduled to be held at the Nevin Mast farm in Berks County on July 21.

The Masts have been pasturing for the past four years and have 50 cows with 25 acres permanent pasture, with another 10 acres available for summer use.

The Masts planted brassicas in December last year on 20 acres.

To get to their farm from Oley, take Rt. 662 south from Rt. 73. After about two miles, turn left onto Oley Turnpike Road. Go to the end of the road and make a left. The Mast farm is the second one on the left. There is a church across the road from the farm.

For more information, call Tim Fritz at the Montgomery County office at (610) 489-4315, or contact a local extension agent.

Holding the microphone, Jack Fritz smiles while explaining to a group of people interested in pasturing techniques employed at his farm.

These cows are part of the 135 Holsteins the Fritz family milks and feeds using pasture and TMR. Cleanliness of the animals, reduced exposure to poor environmental conditions and the apparent eagerness of the animals to eat prime fresh forage has been the cause of enthusiasm for the technique for the Fritzes. However, they say that pasturing does require more attention to detail and a broader based knowledge of plants and animals.

Changes In Pa.'s Agribusiness Economy Mirror Change Nationwide

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania agribusinesses are following trends set by other resource-based and manufacturing industries in the state, but have not been hit as hard by job losses, said a researcher in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"The number of Agribusiness jobs and companies is declining, in both production and processing," said Dr. Steve Smith, associate professor of agricultural economics. "But these declines are small compared to those in industries not related to agriculture."

Smith and Dr. Theodore Fuller, adjunct assistant professor of agricultural economics, used data from the Pennsylvania Department and the Department of Labor and Industry to compare trends in the Pennsylvania agribusiness economy with other manufacturing industries.

Pennsylvania's economy has undergone drastic changes in the past 15 years. "Manufacturing employment declined in all years but two from 1980, resulting in a net loss of 375,000 jobs, or more than 28 percent of total manufacturing employment," Smith said.

"In rural areas, the major employment declines occurred in manufacturing industries unrelated to agriculture or forestry," Smith said. "Job losses in these industries were five times greater than in traditional rural resource-based industries. The industries underlying the decline were the same industries on which rural economic diversification and job growth had been based in the 1960s and 1970s."

Throughout this period, total nonfarm employment in the state grew by 6.3 percent, with all the net increase coming since the mid-1980s. "This was due entirely to growth in private service-producing industries," Smith said. "Manufacturing, government, and mining had net job losses."

Traditional rural industries also continued a long-term decline, including farm production employment and agriculture-related manufacturing. "Farm employment decreased by about 11 percent from 1975 to 1987, and the decline has continued," Smith said. "The number of farms and amount of land in farms also have declined."

At the same time, agricultural output has increased, indicating that agricultural industries are adopting labor-saving technology. "Poultry output and hog output have expanded by about 20 percent and 30 percent, respectively, since the mid-1980s," Smith said. "Long-term increased in milk production have continued, accompanied by growth in the greenhouse and nursery industry. Growth in mushrooms has been especialloy strong. The only significant declines have been in beef cattle, apples, and corn for grain."

Food processing employment as a whole declined 5.5 percent from 1975 to 1990, a loss of almost 5,000 jobs. Most job losses were in dairy products, bakery products, fats and oils, and beverages. Food processing industries that gained employment were meat products, miscellaneous products, and sugar and confectionery products.

These changes in the manufacturing and agribusiness economics signal a major change in the character of Pennsylvania's general economy, both rural and urban. "Pennsylvania certainly has less of the heavy industry for which it was known," Smith said. "The economy has become much more diversified and more like the nation's as a whole."

N.Y. Farm Bureau Meets Growth Objective

ALBANY, N.Y. — 23,812!!! New York Farm Bureau has surpassed its 1994 membership goal by 448.

According to David Whitmore, organization director for the state Farm Bureau, "This is the most member families we've ever had and it looks like we will top 24,000 in just a few weeks."

He said, "The growing member numbers mean increased legislative clout on correcting the critical issues facing agriculture and rural New York, like soaring property and business taxes, skyrocketing workers' compensation premiums, and attacks against the rights of private property owners. Farmers and their rural neighbors recognize that they can only solve their problems by working together as a group — and Farm Bureau provides the vehicle to make that happen."

For information about joining Farm Bureau, call (518) 436-8495 or write to Organization Department, New York Farm Bureau, Inc., P.O. Box 992, Glenmont, N.Y. 12077-0992.

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK
Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — After nine weeks of counter-seasonal price increases of nearly 12 cents, prices on the National Cheese Exchange plummeted 20 cents during the last four weeks.

Prices were expected to drop with increasing dealer inventories and milk production, and the first sign came with just a half-cent, cheese-price fall on April 22.

The next drop was 4 cents on barrels the following week, and then a 5-cent price drop came during the first week of May.

Disaster really struck on Friday the 13th — prices went 10 cents lower.

That put block prices down to less than $1.20, and barrel prices less than $1.21.

Previous high prices, coming just a month ago, were nearly $1.40 for blocks and more than $1.37 for barrels.

While a price drop was predicted, the suddenness was a shock that completely changed the market situation for the rest of the year.

Even without further losses, the 20-cent fall could translate into a $2 drop in the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series within the next two months, and be reflected in the farm price by mid-summer.

Right now, the barrel price is higher than the block price, which is the reverse of normal pricing.

That reversal alone would indicate that further price adjusting will occur, and the trend downward will continue.

The long anticipated increase in milk production came in April, but started back in March, according to revised estimates.

For April, milk production was 1 percent more than a year ago, ending nine consecutive months with production lower than year-before levels.

Wisconsin and Minnesota continued dropping production at the same rate of 7 percent and 5 percent, a trend they have maintained since last fall.

The Northeast stayed even, with Pennsylvania down 1 percent, and New York up 1 percent. But that is still a lot of milk in this market.

The big increases came from the South and West, with California up 8 percent, Washington 4 percent, Florida 7 percent, Texas 11 percent, and Idaho production up 15 percent.

Milk was moving out of the South to Midwest plants for processing.

Cheese prices weren't the only ones affected by increasing milk production. Butter prices dropped below support levels and increased volumes were being offered to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Non-fat dry powder, for the first time this year, was purchased by the CCC during the first week of May. Since then, nearly three million pounds has been offered for sale.

Enjoy It Now

After the bad news, comes the good news.

The M-W price for April was $12.99. That's 22 cents more than last month, and 84 cents more than last year.

The M-W made another record high for the month, and this higher price will be feeding into your milk check for the next two months. In fact, the higher milk prices you've had so far this year are part of the reason for the increased production.

However, production increases may not be finished yet — the upper Midwest hasn't kicked in yet with a new forage crop that will bring production increases in that region.

In Federal Order markets in Pennsylvania, April-milk farm prices will be increased by $1 to $1.37 over last year's price, and it can be expected to climb further in May.

As in other years, how well you fare the rest of the year may well depend on the kindness of the weatherman.

It will be difficult to endure crop losses on top of lower milk prices, so spending must be kept to a minimum, until you know.

Maryland Farmers Involved In Tractor Pull

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Sometimes farmers just have to have fun!

But these farmers did, last month, with wheel spinning, gear grinding, smoke belching fun at the Heart of Maryland Tractor Pull held at the Carroll County Agricultural Center in Westminster, Md.

Proceeds from the tractor pull were to benefit the Agricultural Center, and hundreds of volunteers from various organizations gave of their time and energy to help the event go off as planned.

"This is our first pull of the year," said Heart of Maryland organizer, Helen Erb. "Heart of Maryland averages about 16 of these pulls a year all over the state of Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia. Today's turnout looks good!"

An estimated crowd of 5,000 came out on the sunny afternoon to cheer on the 120 entries in the categories of farm stock, modified, superstock, four-wheel drive and two-wheel drive.

Trophies were provided for the first, second, third and fourth place winners in the farm stock divisions but pullers earning points in the modified and superstock divisions had cash prizes as an added incentive.

"This is a sanctioned pull and there's big money involved," said Bill Clem, a representative from the National Tractor Pullers Association. "A promoter like the Carroll County Agricultural Center has to put $10,000 up front to the Heart of Maryland Tractor Pullers (the state association representing the National) to bring these pullers in here. If the pullers come to compete, the money is guaranteed."

Local machinery dealers and businesses lent their support as did volunteer groups such as the Grange, The Junior Troopers, the Young Farmers and the Farm Bureau. They operated all the concession booths and monitored the grounds with all profits going to the Agricultural Center.

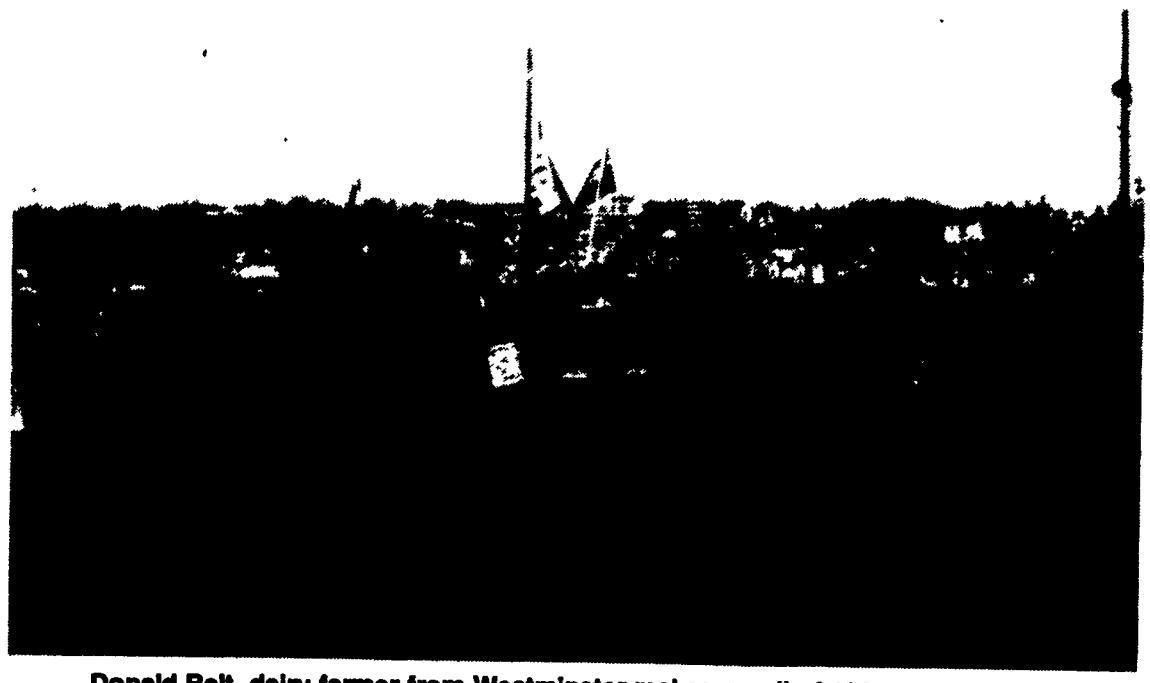
"The thing I like about this," said Clem, who has been involved since 1974, "is that it is a family thing. You'll get dad building one and then the whole family joins in. These are all home-built by the drivers and the families. The wives and the kids and everyone gets involved and works along with it. It is a chance for the farmers to have fun, and that is what they are doing today!"

"I took two seconds (placements), and I was tickled to death," said puller Bob Colson, Frizzelburg, Md. Colson was also one of the organizers of this annual event.

"Randy Devaugh beat me in the heavy class. I went down to Anne Arundel County and pulled Saturday," Colson explained, "and I beat him by about sixty feet. He asked me if I could help him set up his injection pump a little and so I helped him out. then, he came back and beat me! Hey, that's an unselfish puller, isn't it?"

The Heart of Maryland Tractor Pull, like all sanctioned pulls, was monitored by the National Association. A new digital board supplied by Westminster Chevrolet not only kept the crowds aprised of the longest disntance pulled and the puller in the lead, but was also equipped with a lasor beam that measured each pull.

As the spectators watched the classes progress throughout the day they also got to see how the puller's tractors have progressed. The first, stock tractor classes were an example of typical farm tractors. The next class, the modified division, showed how pullers opted for more power.



Donald Belt, dairy farmer from Westminster makes a pull of 186.9 feet. The front wheels rise at the end of the pull.

"This is where they take a tractor rear end, stretch the frame out and put any combination of engines on it," said Bill Clem. "There is no limit to the horsepower, but they have to weigh under 7,200 pounds. The secret to winning is how they put the weight on the tractor," Clem said. "They have to keep that front end down. It takes a long time to get the engines set just right and to make two or three engines run together at the same time, so they are all pulling the same."

According to "Pull Magazine," innovative competitors often use V-12 Allison airplane engines and even tank motors!

"The super stock tractors look like farm tractors, but they're all souped up," Clem said. They must have just one engine and with the exception of having wider tires and custom paint they must retain their original manufacturers sheet metal design. "These guys will burn three to five gallons of diesel fuel in one pull," Clem admitted. "The smoke gets so thick out here it looks like a tornado!"

Two wheel drive trucks are the next category and the newest addition to the pulling lineup, introduced in 1984. In a short time they have gone from an oddity to being one of the sports hottest divisions. Four wheel drive trucks also sport big classes in the tractor pulls. "Pull Magazine" says the secret to winning with the trucks is in becoming a master track reader.

"A lot of volunteers came together, donating a lot of time to pull-off the event," said Clem of the Sunday tractor pull. As the smoke rose like thunderclouds, the crowd cheered and the drivers grinned and signaled thumbs up, it was apparent that Sunday was indeed a day for fun.

Winners in their divisions were as follows:

FARM STOCK-6,000 lb.-John Harrison of Woodbine Md. driving a John Deere 8. FARM STOCK -8,000 lb.-Herbert Catterton of Harwood, Md. driving a John Deere 4010. FARM STOCK-13,000 pound-Keith Griffit of Boonsboro, Md. driving an International 1206. FARM STOCK-16,000 lb.-Randy Devaugh of Upper Marlboro, MD. driving an International 1466.

MODIFIED-7,200 lb-Mike Mills of Fallston, Md. driving a Wycomings.

FOUR WHEEL DRIVE TRUCKS-Willy Omps of Winchester, Va. driving a Ford F350.

TWO WHEEL DRIVE TRUCKS-Bryan McDonald of Harwood, Md. driving with an Oldsmobile motor.

Dairy Calf Study Indicates Need For Management Change

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced that a recently completed one-year study indicates that herd management practices may have an impact on the prevalence of the pathogen E. coli 0157:H7 in dairy herds.

"This finding is valuable and could point to ways to lower the levels of E. coli 0157:H7 in cattle and thus reduce the incidence of food poisoning and related diseases in humans," said Patricia Jensen, acting assistant secretary for marketing and inspection services.

Cattle shed the E. coli 0157:H7 organism in their feces, which can contaminate the environment and expose other animals. Although cattle carry and shed the bacteria without becoming ill, human illnesses associated with E. coli 0157:H7 can include bloody diarrhea and hemorrhagic uremic syndrome, a serious kidney disease and the leading cause of acute kidney failure in children.

Sources of human infection vary, but many documented outbreaks of disease have been traced to undercooked beef.

Humans can become exposed through consuming contaminated undercooked meat, untreated water, unpasteurized milk, or materials cross contaminated with these products. Person-to-person transmission is also an important source of secondary infections in humans.

Jensen said the dairy heifer study, conducted by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, is only one of a number of efforts by the department to improve the safety of meat and poultry products.

"Over the past year," she said, "we have initiated a strategic pathogen reduction program that aims to reduce microbial contamination from the farm to the table."

The study that APHIS conducted through its National Animal Health Monitoring System followed newborn calves to the weaning stage. The study included 1,811 dairy operations in 28 states, Fecal samples collected from about 7,000 preweaned calves from more than 1,000 dairy operations were tested for presence of the pathogen.

Samples from 25 of these calves from 19 farms in 16 states tested positive for the organism, for a prevalence of 3.6 per 1,000 calves. Farms with positive test results were spread across the country, and no regional or seasonal clustering was found.

The project next conducted a follow-up study on 64 of the study herds to look at shedding patterns (expelling the organism in feces) in infected herds and to determine management factors that might be associated with infection.

An increase in prevalence was identified at eight weeks of age, the average age at which calves were weaned. Weaned calves were three times more likely to test positive than nursing calves.

The study found that if calves were grouped before weaning, the herd was nine times more likely to test positive, than if they were grouped after weaning. This indicates that grouping calves before weaning may increase transmission of E. coli to other calves or precipitate shedding of the pathogen in calves already carrying it in their systems.

Jensen said USDA's food safety emphasis last year was on enforcement and on developing a science-based inspection system.

She said food safety improvements have included special unannounced reviews of meat and poultry plants, which resulted in temporarily stopping activities at several plants; mandating and improving training on zero tolerance for fecal matter on beef carcasses; increased research from the farm to the table to develop methods to detect and destroy pathogens, as well as new inspection methods based on sound science; rapid bacteria test research; and the hiring of 200 additional inspectors in the Food Safety and Inspection Service and an additional 200 in the fiscal 1995 budget.

"We are in the process of issuing a final rule mandating safe cooking and handling labels for raw and partially cooked meat and poultry products," Jensen noted. "USDA also is engaged in a broad range of cooperative efforts with the states and with other federal agencies to enhance food safety. Currently, more than 70 pathogen reduction activities are under way."

SRBC Proposes Rules

best option, is set at 14 cents per 1,000 gallons consumed during the entire year, not just during drought.

Despite possible cost increases, agriculturalists and rural basin residents may fare much better than the non-farm sector.

Urban and city dwellers may end up paying for their heavy demand of water, because public water suppliers, as well as large companies, must also compensate.

The proposed package of rules contains several exemptions and allowances for agricultural uses of water, but it tightens up regulations overall and sets a level of water use by agricultural producers beyond which those producers must make a form of compensation.

Also, the proposed rules allow that agriculturalists who would otherwise be required to make some form of compensation for water use are limited to make compensation of only 50 percent of the use. Other users must compensate in full.

For about a year, the SRBC has been working on developing new rules that bring together several separately approved regulations and also address areas of concern that previously had not been included in as much detail.

Working with an agricultural advisory committee, staff of the SRBC drafted the proposed regulations in an attempt to ease the understanding and, perhaps the implementation, of what it takes to comply with the SRBC goal of managing water resources within the entire basin.

The advisory committee still exists and expects to reconvene sometime in June, according to Dave Bingaman, who sat on the board representing the state Department of Agriculture.

On Thursday, Bingaman was in Ephrata at Henry B. Hoover Inc., helping with the Lancater County portion of the state's Plastic Pesticide Container Recycling Program. (For more information on that program, call the PDA at (717) 787-4843.)

Bingaman said that he attended the committee meeting for about a year and that he hasn't had an opportunity to review the final draft of the proposed SRBC rules, but from what he could tell, the commission made a lot of changes for the benefit of agriculture, from what the commission had first proposed.

According to Bingaman, other members of the committee include hog producer Harlan Keener; poultry producer Jim Espenshade; potato producer Keith Masser; New York agriculturalist Murray Mehany; a representative from the Maryland agriculture department; Herb Brody, representing the University of Maryland; seed corn producer Taylor Doebler Jr.; Kurt Leitholf, who is executive director of the Association of Conservation Districts; and water specialist Leon Ressler, with the Penn State Extension Service.

There may be others who were involved, but have not attended since the time Bingaman began attending, which was shortly after the committee formed, he said.

The committee requested of the commission five changes to the rules proposal, Bingaman said.

In order for farmers to be allowed to include the last significant drought year in their consumptive records as part of an allowable use during drought, the committee asked that Dec. 31, 1991 be used as the cutoff for grandfathering.

In its approved proposal, the commission has used January 23, 1971 as a cutoff for grandfathering water use, and it must be reasonably documented, according to Richard Cairo, SRBC general counsel and secretary.

The committee also requested that the commission continue to waive the application fees and monitoring fees for agriculture, as has been the case. The commission has granted a waiver for those fees to farmers who use less than 100,000 gallons per day (they still will be required to make compensation for half of what they consume).

Bingaman said the commission was "not totally consistent with what we were asking, but closer than it was. The concerns of the (agriculture) secretary were for new operations starting up and needing water. This does allow some consumptive use by new operations."

The committee also asked that irrigation only be considered to be 85 percent "consumptive" in water use. The commission has made it 100 percent.

The committee requested support of SRBC policies at the state and federal level to encourage construction of water storage facilities in the basin, such as building lakes that could serve the consumptive needs of several farms during a drought. To knowledge, there is nothing in the regulations that addresses that issue, but the commission may have other methods.

The ag committee also requested that the commission include municipalities in the basin, and the city of Baltimore, as being chargable with replacing consumed water during drought.

Previously, the public water sources were not considered, because regulators viewed the consumption of individual people, not the cumulative consumption tied into a public water supply system.

The commission went along with that change.

According to Bingaman, the commission has said that its proposed regulations may affect 100 farms in the basin.

"I think what we saw here over the last number of months ... on the part of the SRBC is to take a position that is better for ag in Pennsylvania. Extending credit from just grandfathering farms in to where new farms are going to be given some credit for consumptive use is positive," Bingaman said.

While the possibility of an added expense posed by the passing of the regulations is real and some may fight the commission strongly, the commission is responsible for managing for a larger issue than agricultural competitiveness.

The droughts during the 1980s increasingly brought about a general public cry for some type of management in how water is used within the basin.

Up until now, the management of water by the state has been almost nil.

According to the constitution of Pennsylvania, all residents are entitled to the right of clean air and water, though how much water any individual can take and not put back had never previously been seriously managed.

Given the task of creating regulations to bring some kind of fairness and direction in the system of water use, the SRBC has been

Empire State Spring Ayrshire Sale

COBLESKILL, N.Y. — An Ayrshire heifer consigned by Oliver Cottrell, of West Kingston, R.I., sold for $1,900 to top the recent 26th Annual Empire State Spring Sale, held at Cobleskill, N.Y.

The offering of 83 head, including five calves, went to 37 buyers. Forty-five of the animals were purchased by New York residents, 23 head went to Pennsylvania buyers, 13 went to Connecticut, and two were purchased by Delaware buyers.

The sale was managed by Tom Whittaker, of Brandon, Vt., with Del Haynes, of Tully, N.Y., serving as sale chairman, and Mark Kent, of Sennett, N.Y., acting as auctioneer.

In all, Cottrell consigned 21 bred heifers to the sale, with 13 selling for $1,000 or more. In addition to the high-selling animal, other top Cottrell animals sold for $1,500, $1,700, and $1,850.

The buyer of the top selling animal was a syndicate of McNeil, Burne and Cottrell. The heifer is a daughter of a son of Jade, out of a Rebel dam with a 322-day first lactation record of 14,220 pounds of milk with 554 pounds, or 3.9 percent, of fat.

Don McNeil, of Ellenburg Center, N.Y., a member of the syndicate, purchased the next highest selling animal himself, paying $1,850 for a Reliable daughter.

Another Reliable daughter from an Elite dam with a 3-10, 305-day record of 19,439 pounds of 3.5 percent fat milk, was purchased by Charles Dye, of New Berlin, N.Y.

Dye also purchased a Bonnie-Brae Jordon daughter for $1,500, and a Lagace Maya daughter for $1,400. The Jordon daughter is out of a dam that made 17,753 pounds of milk, 702 pounds of fat in a lactation (length of time not reported), started as a 5-year-old. The Maya daughter's dam made a 4-10, 365-day lactation record of 18,578 pounds of milk, with 4.4 percent, or 809 pounds of fat.

According to Whittaker, sales manager, another large volume buyer was Charles Pent, of Belleville. "His investment of $7,350 included a $1,225 fresh cow by Royal Welcome from Hill-Farmily-Farm, of Chateaugay, N.Y." Whittaker stated that the cow had posted a first lactation production of 12,457 pounds of milk, with 4.1 percent fat, in 295 days.

Carlyle Pepper of Monroeton, Pa., was the third single largest buyer. Among his five selections, he paid $1,110 for a springing Hill-Family-Farm cow with a 368-day lactation production of 13,086 pounds of 3.9 percent-fat milk.

James F. Pastos, of Beltavern Farm in Waterloo, N.Y., paid $1,300 for a fresh heifer from a dam that, as a 3-year-old, made a 305-day production record of 11,348 pounds of milk with 4.5 percent fat. The heifer's grandsires are Jade and Johnny.

Ripken Growth Poster Given At Dairy Night

BALTIMORE, Md. — Dairy farmers scored a big win with local baseball fans Tuesday evening, May 17, at Baltimore's Camden Yards Stadium with a Cal Ripken, Jr. Growth Poster giveaway to all fans under 14. Dairy Night with the Orioles was sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

Nearly 15,000 youngsters took home the six-foot posters featuring long-time milk drinker and milk spokesman, Ripken. The posters carry the words "Drink Milk and Reach for the Star" to encourage youngsters to drink milk and see if they can measure up to Ripken, the All-Star Baltimore Orioles shortstop and two-time Most Valuable Player of the American League.

For more than a decade Ripken has been touting the benefits of milk. He credits his good health and longevity to his life-long milk drinking habit. Ripken is on his way to setting a new "Ironman" record for the number of consecutive games played. He could achieve this goal in 1995.

In addition to the Ripken Growth Posters, 10,000 women received a complimentary copy of the Cynthia Kereluk Workout & Fitness Planner. The planner offers information on fitness and nutrition, dairy recipes and exercises. More than 3.3 million copies of the popular fitness planner have been distributed since the first edition in 1992.

Dawn Downey, Maryland State Dairy Princess, threw out the first ball for MAMMA. More than 47,000 fans watched the Baltimore Orioles defeat the Boston Red Sox 3-2.

The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association is the only qualified regional program that includes advertising, promotion, nutrition education, retail merchandising, school food service, communications and public relations for the entire Middle-Atlantic milk marketing area. More than 5,000 dairy farm families support the MAMMA program.

ADA Announces Ice Cream Greetings

ROSEMONT, Ill. — American Dairy Association® (ADA) and National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (NDB) are giving consumers reason to celebrate this summer with a unique offer that combines two of America's celebration favorites: ice cream and greeting cards.

During the "Celebrate with Ice Cream" promotion, consumers who make any ice cream purchase of $2.50 or more can receive five free custom-designed greeting cards targeting top card-giving occasions: birthday, anniversary, new baby, congratulations and friendship. The cards feature cow caricatures enjoying ice cream and engaged in activities appropriate for each occasion.

"It's a winning combination," says Dick Cooper, vice president of Marketing Services for ADA. "Ice cream is one of the top three celebration foods, and each year Americans send more than 7.5 billion greeting cards. We're bringing the two together for a fun promotion that's sure to catch the attention of consumers."

To receive a set of the custom greeting cards, consumers must send a mail-in certificate, $1 for postage and handling and a cash register receipt showing a purchase of $2.50 or more of any size, brand, flavor or form of ice cream.

The "Celebrate with Ice Cream" promotion incorporates local radio advertising, print advertising and in-store merchandising.

Print Advertising

On July 10, full-page, full-color ads promoting the offer will appear in Paradise Magazine, USA Weekend Magazine and in the magazine sections of select Sunday newspapers. The ads, which feature consumer mail-in certificates, have a total circulation of over 52 million.

Radio Advertising

From June through early July, a 60-second radio commercial will call consumers to look for the card offer in the July 10 issue of Sunday newspaper magazines. A second spot airing in select markets nationwide will remind consumers to celebrate with ice cream all summer long.

In-Store Merchandising

A mobile depicting ice cream treats and tear pads of the mail-in certificates will be available for retailers to display in their frozen dairy sections.

American Dairy Association is the advertising and marketing services division of United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA). UDIA is a member-driven federation that conducts a total promotion program for U.S.-produced milk, cheese and other real dairy foods.

Volunteers Hold Airville Barn Raising

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

AIRVILLE (York Co.) — Like a general directing his troops, the construction foreman called out a few, brief words. In a smooth and practiced response from the building crew, a 126-foot long purline rose slowly into place, not with hydraulics or crane lifts, but through the combined precision and strength of experienced hands.

"Higher," commanded the voice again. The long stretch of thick beam inched farther toward its final position as a lengthwise support for the new barn roof at the Hickorymea Dairy Farm, owned by the T. Edwin Johnson family of Airville.

A smoke-stained concrete silo standing next to the angular framing of new, yellow lumber silently recounted an earlier, more tragic, turnout of volunteers. Four months old, dozens of other hands had arrived to battle the January 13 blaze which destroyed the Johnson family's 44-stanchion dairy barn and their year's supply of tons of hay and straw stored in the mows overhead. Only the adjoining milkhouse was saved.

The barn-raising held Tuesday at the Airville dairy farm was a far more upbeat event, with joking, laughter, and a spirit of camaraderie overcoming the bone-chilling dampness and unseasonably cold mid-May weather. Nearly 100 friends and neighbors of the Johnsons joined forces with a barn building crew from the John Ebersole construction firm of Lancaster for a day of literally 'raising the rafters."

One day earlier, some 50 yards of concrete had been wheelbarrowed into the barn's ground floor, for the remodeled and expanded 60-stanchion milking setup. A tiled feed trough, level with the feed alleyway, and gravity-watering systems are features of the rebuilt facility. Pipeline installation is scheduled for Monday morning, and the Johnson's hope to be milking in the barn by the end of next week.

By day's end, parts of the siding and flooring were completed, and even some sections of tin had been fastened to the peaked roof of the 126-feet by 38-feet rebuilt barn. Several of the hay mow sections inside had also been partitioned off.

"Our builder was pleased at the progress and at all these volunteers who came to work and the kind of job they did," said Johnson.

Especially interesting to many of the farmer building volunteers was the unique gravity watering system. It's a feature Eddie Johnson admired in the barn of a Lancaster County Amish dairyman he had visited some time ago and adapted for the family's new setup.

"I had decided last year that I wanted to put this kind of system in the barn," said Johnson of the mechanical-device-free waterers. So, when the family made the late winter decision to rebuild, there was no debate on the watering system they would install.

Waterers, one located between every two cows, are fashioned from 12-inch PVC pipe, cut into about 24-inch lengths, stood on end, and the bottoms cemented into the floor. Coming up the center of each 12-inch pipe is a three-inch PVC pipe section, about six-inches long, also stood on end and connected on the bottom to the water supply pipe, laid into the floor around the barn. Water rises into the drinking reservoirs through the smaller pipe inserts in the bottom center. Level of water for all the reservoirs are controlled around the barn by only four valves. This provides a constant, ready supply of water for the cows to drink, from waterers with no mechanical devices to corrode, freeze or burst.

"It's a low-maintenance watering system that can be flushed out for cleaning," said Abbe Johnson Gore, one of the Johnson's five children, all on hand Tuesday to assist with the barn raising and feeding the large crowd of barn-raising volunteers. Abbe and her sister Patty Johnson are both DHIA technicians — Abbe in York and Patty in Lancaster. Some of their testing clients were among the hammer-welding crew. A third daughter, Edwina Shoff, often joins her sisters in helping with the family chores on the Johnson farm.

Eddie, his wife Doris, and their sons Keel and Tom "Chip" Johnson comprise the full-time crew at Hickorymea Farm, with its herd of registered, polled Holsteins. On the morning of January 13, Eddie, Chip and Patty had just finished milking chores and set down at the kitchen table for breakfast. When Eddie saw cows out milling around and rose from his chair to see why animals were running about, he spotted the smoke from the barn.

At the call of the construction foreman supervising from the floor below, a main beam running the length of the barn gets hoisted up into place.

A plentiful supply of food, snacks and hot and cold drinks kept workers and volunteers "fueled" for a day of barn-raising construction efforts.

While the herd was chased from the barn and saved, the tons of hay and straw in the overhead storage mow added smouldering fuel to a fire that summoned fire companies from several surrounding towns. The Johnsons believe that the fire began in an extension cord used to plug in a tractor motor that morning to warm it up for easier starting.

Several neighboring dairy farms immediatley moved cows from the Johnson herd in with their own animals. Helping to house the Hickorymea cows were the dairy operations of the George Knight family, Donnell Taylor family, David Stewart family, and David Druck family.

Eddie Johnson estimates that the original section of the barn was about a century old, with a second addition added about 25 years later, and a third built on in 1959. He grew up here on the family farm and following high school, returned to become a full-time dairyman. In 1970, Eddie and Doris purchased the farm from his parents.

At the end of the busy, productive barn-raising day, a grateful Eddie Johnson was almost at a loss for words to express the family's feelings.

"It's super," he said. "We're really thankful and appreciative of all this help.

"It's sort of breathtaking."

Milk Prices Decline, BST Not To Blame

ROBERT CROPP
Extension Dairy Marketing and Policy Specialist
University of Wisconsin-Madison

MADISON, Wis. — Farm level milk prices continued to increase during April, but will begin to decline in May. The April Minnesota-Wisconsin price (M-W) increased 22 cents from March to $12.99 per hundredweight.

The April M-W was 84 cents per hundredweight higher than last year and the highest M-W since August, 1990, when it was $13.09.

The strength in the M-W was due to rising cheese prices through early April. But, 40-pound block cheddar cheese prices on the National Cheese Exchange started to drop on April 15, and cheddar barrel prices started falling on April 22.

As of Friday, May 13, cheddar blocks had dropped 19.5 cents per pound to $1.1975, and cheddar barrels prices dropped 16.5 cents per pound to $1.2075.

Cheddar blocks were 19.5 cents per pound below what they were a year ago, and cheddar barrels were 15.75 cents per pound below.

Expect Further Delcines

We can expect further declines in the immediate weeks ahead, especially for barrels, since they are 1 cent per pound higher than blocks.

The normal relationship is for barrels to be 3 to 4 cents per pound lower than blocks.

Last year cheese prices did not begin to fall until May 4 for blocks and May 28 for barrels. As a result, last year the M-W increased through May, but topped out at $12.52 per hundredweight, 47 cents lower than this year's April M-W. The M-W then fell last year from May to August as cheese prices weakened, reaching $11.17 per hundredweight.

At this low, cheddar block prices were $1.21 per pound and cheddar barrels were $1.15 per pound. While existing cheddar barrel prices are still above this low price, cheddar block prices are lower.

Cheese prices once again began to strengthen in August pushing up the M-W to a peak of $12.75 for November. With weaker cheese prices towards the end of the year, the M-W fell to $12.51 for December.

This year, with declining cheese prices in April, the May M-W will decline.

The question is, by how much?

The change in milk prices follows cheese price changes.

Although cheese prices have declined by an amount equivalent to nearly $2 per hundredweight on raw milk, the M-W will not decline by this amount in May.

But a 75 cents to $1 per hundredweight decline in the M-W for May is quite possible.

By July or August, the M-W may be below $11 per hundredweight, which would below last August's M-W of $11.17 per hundredweight.

It is quite likely that cheese prices, like last year, could increase late summer and strengthen the M-W some during the fall. But it is not likely that the M-W will rebound to the extent as it did last year.

Nevertheless, because of stronger prices than a year ago for the first 4 months of the year, the M-W could still average, for the year, near last year's $11.80 per hundredweight M-W price.

Cheese prices, and in turn farm-level milk prices, are declining despite milk production being down in the Midwest.

April milk production compared to a year ago shows Wisconsin down 7.3 percent, Minnesota down 4.9 percent and Iowa down 4.3 percent.

Each of the states reported fewer milk cows; Wisconsin 6.2 percent, Minnesota 3.1 percent and Iowa 3.4 percent.

Each state also had less milk per cow; Wisconsin 1.2 percent, Minnesota 1.9 percent, and Iowa .9 percent.

These states still suffered from dairy farmers and milk cows leaving the industry and lower feed quality adversely affecting milk production per cow.

But in the West, Southeast and Southwest milk production is booming.

was based on his exposure to helping on the family farm. Since Jeffrey's father died, the farm has been rented out, but Jeffrey helps with the work on the 125 acres and with milking about 48 cows. Jeffrey is a member of the National Honor Society and plays on the volleyball team at school. Last year, he spent three weeks in Germany as a cultural exchange student. This year, he hosted a student from the same town. As an active member of the Middle Creek Church of the Brethren youth group, Jeffrey has traveled to other states for work projects.

He has four sisters and one brother. He wants to stay close to the family farm and help others through the business aspect of farming.

Amy Espenshade, is the daughter of Harvey and Susan Espenshade of Elizabethtown. She plans to study horticulture for two years at the Penn State York Campus before transferring to the main campus.

After moving up through the ranks of many offices, Amy is president of the FFA at Elizabethtown High School. She is also treasurer of the National Honor Society, and a member of the following clubs: Overcoming Drugs through Education, Key, and Human Relations, a community service club.

On the family's 140-acre farm, Amy helps milk 50 cows and feeds the calves. She has a brother and a sister. She is a member of the youth ministry team at the Elizabethtown Brethren in Christ Church.

Debra Fisher, who lives in Lancaster is headed to Iowa State after her graduation from Conestoga Valley High School. The 17-year-old said she chose Iowa State because it has an excellent veterinary medicine program.

Debra likes working with animals and had a taste of her career choice by working part time at the Smoketown Veterinary Hospital last year. She also volunteers time at the Humane Society, where she takes animals for walks.

Debra has traveled to France with her French class, is active in soccer, band, Lyceum lectures, newspaper staff, Adopt-a- Highway, International Club, photography, and dancing. At St. Anthony's Church, she is active in the youth group and serves as an usher.

Debra lives with her parents, Frank and Lorraine Fisher and a sister Tina.

Kristen Groff, daughter of Carlton and Carol Groff of Kirkwood, has her sights set on studying agri-biology at Carleton University in Minnesota. To reach this decision, Kristen visted 12 colleges. Carleton was the last one she visited, but immediately she knew it was the right one because "I felt at home and the school has a strong biology program."

Kristen's career choice was influenced by working in her parents' business, Groff's Plant Farm with its 13 greenhouses.

At Solanco High School, Kristen is secretary of the Young Educator's Association, band, chorus, and plays. At the Middle Octoraro Presbyterian Church, Kristen is president of the youth group, a deacon, a Sunday school teacher, and choir member.

Kristen toured Europe last summer with American Music Abroad.

Marcia Harnish, is best known as Lancaster County and Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess. She is also president of FFA at Manheim Central and in the county chapter.

She works at White Oak Mills in dairy nutrition through the ag work study program, and will continue there this summer and the summers between studying agribusiness at Penn State. She would like a career in communications and marketing in agriculture.

Marci helps her parents, Robert and Marti, on their 80-acre Manheim farm where they milk 50 cows. She has a brother, Greg, and a sister, Kristen.

At school, Marci has played field hockey, participated in the Spring musical, been named Teen of the Week, and was crowned Manheim Farm Show Queen.

Marci is active at Ruhls United Methodish Church and has traveled on several mission's trips.

Lora Shelton, the daughter of Charles and Margie Shelton of Quarryville, attends Solanco High School.

Her love for horses is pushing her toward studying biology and pre-veterinarian medicine at Millersville University. She wants to be a vet who specializes in horses.

Lora is a member of Chester County 4-H and the Lan-Chester 4-H Pony Club.

Mark Tracy, in addition to raising Southdown sheep and market lambs on his parent's farm, also participates in livestock and meats judging and in the 4-H ambassador program. He is a former president of the Woolies Club where he has been a member for 10 years.

Mark is in the gifted program at Elizabethtown High School. His team placed third in state competition of the Odessy of the Mind. Mark is also a club member of Overcoming Drugs in Education, soccer, and ski club.

At St. Peter's Church, Mark is an altar server. He is a member of Denal, the Masonic Fraternal Group for Young Men.

Lebanon County To Hold Ice Cream Social

ONO (Lebanon Co.) — In recognition of June as National Dairy Month, the Lebanon County Dairy Promotion Committee has scheduled an all-you-can-eat ice cream social to be held at the Lebanon Vocational-Technical School 7:30 p.m., June 4.

The school is located on the east end of the city of Lebanon, off of Rt. 422 East.

According to Kynel Himmelberger, with the county promotion committee, the ice cream social is being held to honor the county's outgoing dairy princesses and little miss.

In addition to the ice cream, there is to be music provided by Roy Shirk.

The event is being held in lieu of the annual dairy princess pageant, because interested contestants could not be found.

However, the committee is still searching for contestants to serve as Little Miss for dairy promotion. In order to qualify as a little miss, contestants must be at least 5 years old, and no older than 9 years.

Those interested in being a contestant should contact Kynel by May 27, at (717) 865-4912.

Dairy barns can be a comfortable and healthy place for cows on a hot summer afternoon — that is, if the barn is properly ventilated. Barns provide cows shade, easy access to fresh feed and water plus a clean, comfortable place to lie down and rest.

There are many ways to ventilate tie stall barns, one of which is tunnel ventilation. It works well in narrow barns. In barns that are 36 to 40 ft. wide, four 48 in. fans are installed in one end of the barn, with all the air inlets located at the opposite end; all other air inlets are closed. About 2.5 sq. ft. of air inlet area is needed per 1,000 cfm of fan capacity. With four 48 in. fans that amounts to 200 sq. ft. For a 40 ft. wide barn, that requires a 5 ft. wide slot across the full width of the barn, or its equivalent. This amount of fan capacity should create about a 3-4 mph breeze and provide 1-2 air changes per minute.

A few words of caution. Be sure to make provisions for ventilating the barn in the event of a power failure! Tunnel ventilation is a good hot weather system; it is not a good year-round system. In cooler weather, when air flow is considerably less, it takes too long for air to move from one end of the barn to the other; cows at the exhaust end of the stable will be breathing more moist, germ-laden air.

If you already have a good exhaust ventilation system with air inlets distributed uniformly around the stable, you can simply add more exhaust fans to increase air exchange to 1,000 cfm or more per cow. Be sure the air inlets are large enough to accommodate this increased flow of air. This system should keep the air fresh, but it won't create as much breeze as the tunnel system described earlier.

Another way to get fresh air and a breeze to cows' head and shoulder areas is to install a pressurized duct over the curb area of the feed bunk or manger. These ducts can be of polytube or rigid construction. They can be placed beneath the stable ceiling if there is sufficient ceiling height, or constructed above the ceiling (ie. in hay mows, on barn floors or in attics) with air being discharged through holes cut in the ceiling.

The ducts should be large enough to accommodate 400-500 cfm of air per cow, and you'll need about 1 sq. ft. of duct cross section area per 1,000 cfm of air. In other words, an 8,000 cfm fan would require 8 sq. ft.; that's a 3.2 ft. diameter tube or a duct that is 2 ft. x 4 ft. or 3 ft. x 2 ft. 9 in. If one 4,000 cfm fan could be placed at each end of the duct, the cross section area of the duct would only need to be half as large; a 2.25 ft. diameter tube or a duct that is 1 ft. x 4 ft. or 2 ft. x 2 ft. would be sufficient. In addition to being able to use a smaller duct, two fans per duct has another advantage; you can run only one fan in cooler weather when less air movement is needed.

In pole barns, the ridge and side walls can be opened up to encourage greater rates of air exchange. Ideally, the side walls should be opened down to stall bed level. This can be accomplished with curtain walls, removable wall panels, tilt-out panels, etc. Tilt-out panels are more of a maintenance headache, but they can protect stalls along the outside wall from sun and rain. Two inches of ridge vent opening are needed for every 10 ft. of building width, with the minimum width of the opening being 8 inches.

Many farmers have installed circulation fans to create breezes. They do churn up the air but they do not remove moist, stale air and replace it with fresh air. If there is moisture present, the breezes can produce some evaporative cooling.

To create more opportunity for evaporative cooling, cows can be soaked with sprinklers at the feed bunk and then encouraged to stand in a breeze to cool off. The breeze can be natural or fan-generated. If sprinklers are used, provisions should be made for handling excess waste water. If used in enclosed areas, sprinklers tend to increase humidity levels of the area. The increased discomfort caused by higher levels of humidity could erase any benefits gained from evaporative cooling. If used outdoors or in very spacious, well-ventilated feeding areas, sprinklers will have minimal to no influence on humidity levels.

If barns are poorly ventilated, one of the best places for cattle might be outside on a breezy, well-sodded lot. Should you plant trees or erect artificial shades in pastures? Only if you have lots of trees and if the shade is portable. The big concern is, cows will probably crowd under one tree or crowd in the shade area and turn these areas into a mastitis or foot rot cesspool.

Another concern is, when cows are lying in the shade they are not grazing. The goal should be to keep cows dispersed, keep them eating and don't let them linger long in any one spot. In a pasture situation, availability of fresh water may be more important than shade, and if you are looking for portability of water, it could be hauled by tank to individual pasture plots.

Keeping cows comfortable and clean, and keeping them on feed, can pay big dividends.

Penn State is an affirmative action, equal opportunity university.

SRBC Proposes Rules

attempting to create regulations which comply with current laws and yet manage to make all who use water responsible to all other water needs in the basin.

The commission has determined that a main issue of concern is "consumptive use" of water which, in basic terms, means any use of water which makes it unavailable for return to the flows in the Susquehanna River Basin.

The evaporation-cooling tower at the Three-Mile Island Nuclear Reaction Facility in Middeltown is an example of "consumptive" use. The evaporation of the water taken from the river puts it into the air, and makes it unavailable to those living downstream, who depend on certain flows of water.

Although some may take issue with the degree of consumption, in the proposed regulations agricultural uses of water are considered consumptive if water is given to livestock to drink, or if used to irrigate crops. Aquaculture is also considered a consumptive use.

In simple terms, the gist of the plan behind the proposed rules is to encourage those operations — agricultural and other consumers of water — to either create facilities which can store water that can be used during drought, adopt practices which result in conservation and storage of water flows to the river, or to pay a fee of 14 cents per 1,000 gallons.

That rate of payment is based on the estimated amount it costs the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to store water at the Curwinsville and Cowanesque reserviors, according to Cairo.

Currently, the SRBC pays the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for 25,000 acre-feet of water in the Curwinsville reservior. Then when drought comes, the power plants which need water to generate electricity pay the SRBC for the water, which is released from the reservior.

The money is to be set aside in an escrow account and is to be used by the commission for the purchase of water or for other expenses involved with managing basin flows.

Background

The SRBC was formed during the 1970s as a multi-state agency to oversee the use of water in the Susquehanna River Basin.

The need for a commission was and is straightforward: The boundaries created by traditional U.S. political entities were not designed to follow natural boundaries. Therefore, in order to realistically deal with a real resource, such as the water in the Susquehanna River Basin, an agency needed to be formed that could derive its authority from all political entities within the natural boundaries of the resource.

In general terms, the commission was granted the authority to regulate the uses of water within the Susquehanna River Basin by the governments of the people living in the Susquehanna River Basin, and the federal government.

The members of the commission are the heads of the respective states' agencies concerned with environmental issues, and the secretary of the U.S. Department of the Interior. However, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt has yet to be officially declared the federal representative.

The proposed rules are to be published in the federal register.

There are three parts to the proposed regulations, which according to Cairo, are a reorganization of existing regulations and official procedures which cover the commission's review of water-use projects.

In the introduction summary of the draft Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM), it is stated that the proposed regulations were created because of, "The need to improve the overall precision and clarity of regulations; the need to reorganize the regulations into an integrated format that is more readily understandable ... ; the need to add provisions covering subject matter not addressed or inadequately addressed in existing regulations; and the need to deal more effectively with certain segments of the regulated community."

Cairo stressed that the regulations do not convey any water property rights. In Pennsylvania, the water property rights law is the archaic "riparian" rights. In simple, general terms, it means that, in Pennsylvania, whomever lives closer to the water, or whomever can get the water has rights to it.

(As an aside, there are several groups attempting to have this law changed. For example, under riparian rights, in general, if a farmer's well goes dry because of other commercial or residential groundwater demands, it's too bad. Under riparian rights, those who can get to the water first — by being upstream, or using bigger and deeper pumps — have the most rights.)

What the regulations do attempt to control are the review and approval procedures for "consumptive" uses of water, groundwater withdrawals and surface water withdrawals.

They also set up special regulations on water withdrawal registration, water conservation standards, the procedures of public hearings and how penalties are to be imposed.

The wording in the regulations is ambiguous in that it provides the commission, its director and staff with the discretion to determine what is "significant" and to make a determination as to what "may have an adverse or adverse cumulative effect on the water resources of the basin."

According to Cairo, the commission must have this authority of making case-by-case decisions, based on sound, scientific principals, and pertinent information because of the variety of situations which exist, or can come to exist.

Also, there is an appeals process to commission decisions included in the proposal.

In the introductory material provided with the proposal, it states that existing regulations used by the commission in its project review process were created over the course of several years and are not necessarily consistent.

"As a result of this piecemeal promulgation, general procedures for review of projects ... do not always mesh cleanly with the more specific requirements of the special regulations on consumptive use and ground-water withdrawals."

It goes on to outline major areas of confusion by those involved in the process, from those who desire to conduct a project to those in other state agencies who may have related authorities.

"The commission attempted to correct these types of deficiencies with certain regulatory amendments adopted in 1990; however, the confusion persists in the regulated community and even among the signatory party agencies who cooperate with the commission in the management of the river basin's water resources.

According to the introduction, under the current wording in the rules of application procedure, "as it is presently written, directs the sponsors of certain types of projects to apply to the commission, though ultimately these projects may not require commission approval.

"This has been a constant source of confusion, as applicants and others who work with the regulation find it difficult to distinguish the application process from the approval process."

The proposed regulations attempt to make clear which projects require commission approval, while also providing a section to cover projects which may or may not require approval (In that case, a determination is to be made by the SRBC executive director.).

New rules proposed as part of the package would also create a requirement for registration of water withdrawal if the amount exceeds 10,000 gallons per day (gpd). The registration basically is so that the commission has a better data base of who is using water and how much is being used at lower levels than might otherwise be considered significant.

Also, the proposal cites a need for clarity in agricultural water use as a legitimate area of concern.

"A final reason for this package ... is the need to deal more effectively with certain segments of the regulated community.

"For example, the existing consumptive use regulation 803.61 applies to agricultural activities such as crop irrigation. Nevertheless, agricultural compliance with the regulation has been spotty and inconsistent due mainly to a lack of knowledge of the regulation in the agricultural community and SRBC enforcement limitations.

"When the commission made an affirmative effort to inform the agricultural community of these requirements, agriculture quickly responded on the need for adjustments in the regulation to take into account the special compliance problems faced by farmers.

"As a result, special provisions have been included in the revised consumptive use regulation extending a 50 percent compliance credit to agricultural consumptive users as an incentive for their up front compliance with the regulation."

Complete copies of the draft of proposed rules should begin being circulated through different agencies and to representatives of agricultural organizations.

According to Cairo, a series of public hearings has been scheduled to be held within the watershed by the commission in order to receive comments on the proposed rules.

Also, written comments on the proposal will be accepted by the commission until August 1, 1994. Send comments to: Richard Cairo, General Counsel/Secretary, Susquehanna River Basin Commission, 1721 N. Front St., Harrisburg, Pa. 17102-2391.

The scheduled hearings are:

- June 23, 1:30 p.m., at the Fred L. Waterman Conservation Education Center, Hilton Road, Apalachin, N.Y.
- June 23, 7 p.m., same place.
- June 24, 10 a.m., in the auditorium of the Pennsylvania Game Commission Headquarters Building, 2001 Elmerton Ave., Harrisburg. It is located about five miles from the PDA headquarters building in Harrisburg.
- June 24, 7 p.m., at the SRBC Headquarters Building, 1721 N. Front St., Harrisburg.
- July 14, 1:30 p.m., at the Tidewater Inn, Easton, Md. This hearing will follow a regular meeting of the commission, which starts at 9 a.m.

Milk Prices Decline, BST Not To Blame

California, now the leading milk producing dairy state and the second leading cheese producer, produced 8.4 percent more milk in April than a year ago.

This was accomplished with 2.4 percent more cows and 5.9 percent more milk per cow.

The question is, was BST responsible for this strong increase in milk per cow?

Better Conditions Produce More Milk

The answer is that very favorable weather for milk production and good quality feed are the primary facts for strong milk production per cow in California.

California produced 160 million pounds more milk this April than last, while Wisconsin produced 146 million pounds less milk.

Overall, California produced 211 million pounds more milk than Wisconsin did in April.

California produced this much more milk than Wisconsin with 405,000 fewer milk cows than Wisconsin. California averaged 465 pounds more milk per cow.

April compared to a year ago shows Idaho with 7.6 percent more cows, 6.5 percent more milk per cow and an increase in total milk of 14.9 percent.

Washington had 1.6 percent more milk cows, 1.8 percent more milk per cow and 3.6 percent more total milk.

Florida reported a few more milk cows, 6.8 percent more milk per cow and 7.3 percent more total milk.

And Texas had 2.9 percent more milk cows producing 7.6 percent more milk per cow and 10.7 percent more total milk.

Milk plant capacity has been exceeded in the West and Southwest. Surplus milk has moved out of the states to other states with manufacturing plants, some as far as Wisconsin.

Nonfat dry milk plants in the West are at capacity. The extra nonfat dry milk production has weakened nonfat dry milk prices and West Coast nonfat dry milk is being sold at support prices to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Some milk in California and Texas that could not immediately find a plant outlet had to be dumped.

BST Not To Blame

In each of these states, BST is only a small contributing factor to more milk production.

This may be partially verified by two factors.

First, some areas of California where milk production is up substantially are the same areas where milk plants had a moratorium on BST use by their producers.

Second, milk per cow and total milk production has not shown similar increases in the Northeast where there are reports of greater adoption of BST than Western and Southern states.

Compared to last year, April milk per cow was up just 1.9 percent for New York and down 1.7 percent for Pennsylvania.

Both New York and Pennsylvania had fewer milk cows, down 1.2 percent and .3 percent respectively. As a result, New York produced just .7 percent more milk, and Pennsylvania had a 1 percent decline.

Of the 21 reporting states, 11 did produce less total milk than April a year ago. Ten had fewer milk cows and 11 had less milk per cow. So milk expansion is concentrated in those Western and Southwestern states.

In summary, for the 21 reporting states, April compared to year ago, milk cow numbers were down 1.7 percent, milk per cow was up 2.3 percent and total milk production was up .6 percent. Total milk production for the period of January through April was down .3 percent.

This aerial view shows the new Poultry Education and Research Center off University Drive Extension on the outskirts of the University Park Campus. It replaces an aging facility built in the 1930s. This photo was taken before construction was completed. Now the facility is completed, and it was dedicated at a ribbon cutting ceremony on Thursday.

Penn Staters Celebrate

"I want to underscore the Commonwealth's committment to that endeavor. The facility is esential not only to the University but to the poultry industry of our commonwealth and to every citizen. This facility is another tool to give Pennsylvania farmers the most advanced technology in the world today.

And this is an investment in human resources as well," Casey said. "Because the best facilities attract the best people, the best teachers, the brightest students. This will keep Pennsylvania on the cutting edge of the competition in the future. We will be able to meet the challenges of the future in an increasingly demanding and competitive industry.

"Investing in agriculture, in poultry education and research is good business for Pennsylvania. With modern facilities like this, Penn State and Pennsylvania's leadership will continue. As we strengthen and grow our best technologies will lead us into the 21st century. I'm delighted to be here as a part of what is important to the future of the poultry industry. The people who toil in this industry, teachers, researchers, farmers and processors are involved. This new center is a tribute to the agricultural community in Pennsylvania.

David Morrow, Penn State Board of Trustees, accepted the facility on behalf of the board and brought their greetings. "Poultry is very important to Pennsylvania and very important to Penn State,"Morrow said. "Penn State has some of the finest facilities of any land grant university in the U.S.

Weaver said the new facilities more nearly replicate structures and technology used in today's industry. Studies on broilers, turkeys, pullets, layers, breeding and genetics, and processing will be conducted in the center.

The reasearch building containes a conference/classroom, environmental chambers holding up to 400 birds each, a hatchers, a feed mixing area, battery rooms, a surgical suite, a laboratory, offices and student housing.

The meat bird building has four wings, each with 24 research pens, and a laboratory.

The pullet building contains 10 floor/battery rooms, a large pullet cage rearing room, a feed mixing and storage area, and a laboratory.

The cage layer/market turkey building contains six floor/battery rooms, a cage layer room with 3,000-hen capacity, an egg storage area, an egg analysis and processing center and laboratory, and 24 floor pens for market turkeys.

The breeder building contains a large cage room for male and female breeders, observational floor pens, an egg cooler and a records laboratory.

The processing building includes slaughter and evisceration rooms, a walk-in cooler and freezer, a laboratory, a shop and a garage.

Weaver said the environmental chambers in the research building will be especially useful. "We can alter a chamber's temperature, relative humidity, ventilation and light rates to simulate different seasons, housing types and other environmental factors," he said. "That would have been impossible at the old research farm, where environmental conditions often depended on what was happening outside."

Engle's 'Wanderings' Creates Wealth Of Research For Her Job As Lancaster County Home Economist

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Althea Engle has finally come home after years of "wanderlusting" that took her crisscrossing the U.S. and abroad.

Her wanderings were not purposeless. As a registered dietician with a master's degree, Althea has spent years in researching nutrition and evaluating diets. Now, she wants to use all the knowledge she has gained through research in her position as home economist for Lancaster County Cooperative Extension.

"People find nutrition information confusing. I hope to clarify it and interpret how scientific findings are produced," she said.

The Conestoga Township native remembers the 4-H cooking club of her youth where she learned to make chili con corne and a salad dressing that she continues to make today.

It was the combination of exposure to 4-H cooking classes, her grandmother's cooking expertise, and her work in the family's bakery business that influence Engle to pursue a degree in home economics at Goshen College, Indiana.

After she taught home economics at Solanco High School for one year, a restlessness prompted her to search for other opportunities to use her degree. She found it by working in Greece with the Mennonite Central Committee for two years. While there, she volunteered her services by first teaching cooking at a poor rural village and later demonstrating how to use commodity foods. This was a "Food for Work" program where villagers planted trees in exchange for food. The waterfront area had little resources and was being developed as a resort area to help provide income for the residents.

Engle had to set up a cooking program. She quickly learned that American favorites were not taste-receptive to Greeks. She gathered Greek recipes to teach and compiled them into a cookbook.

At first, Engle used a translator during her teaching sessions, but soon she became fluent enough to teach independently. Previous studies in Latin, French, and Spanish, and a perchance for languages enabled her quick adaptation to modern-day Greek.

After a two-year volunteer stint in Greece, Engle felt a need for more nutrition education and returned to the states to study at the University of Wisconsin. After receiving a master's degree in nutrition and food science, Engle taught a year of home economics in Wisconsin and did a nutritional evaluation of the state's Head Start Program before moving to Florida. It was at the University of Florida that Engle had her first experience in working with cooperative extension. Her responsibility was to train aides to work in the Extension's statewide Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP).

Engle visited a migrant camp in order to plan the training and decide upon foods that would help low-income families improve their diets. Nutritional aides visited individual homemakers to teach nutrition, community resources available to meet their needs, use and care of kitchen equipment, food safety, sanitation practices, food money management, and food preservation.

After two years with EFNEP, Engle joined a team that conducted health and nutrition examination surveys. As dietary coordinator, Engle interviewed people to collect data for a nationwide survey to determine the nation's nutrition habits. Those who participated in the survey received an extensive health examination in exchange for answering the questions. A cross-section of one to 74-year-olds showed that malnutrition was a problem, especially in southern states.

For four years, Engle became the field operations manager in charge of mobile units set up at different locations across the U.S. A team of 15 people traveled together to work approximately three to six weeks in each state.

"I met interesting poeple from all over the U.S. and it definitely broadened by horizons. I learned to do things I would never have attempted otherwise," Engle said. Hawaii and Washington state were two of Engle's favorite places.

When that study was phased out, Engle spent in interim period in Lancaster County until she was hired by American Health Foundation to work in New York. Research by the Foundation changed from time to time, depending on grants. Some of Engle's research included doing food recalls with elementary school children and evaluating the results, analyzing diets from different countries for colon cancer research, and a feasibility study on a low-fat diet to prevent reoccurance of breast cancer.

Findings showed the correlation between diet and health. But, Engle said, people often find nutritional information confusing. She hopes to clarify and interpret how scientific findings are produced as some findings if not worded correctly tend to encourage sensationalism rather than factual findings.

Engle would like to use her research background in her extension work by offering innovative programs that influence the health of people. Of prime importance to her is using dietary guidelines to encourage lower-fat and more fruit and vegetable consumpiton.

Since Engle began her job at the extension on April 18, she is becoming acclimated to the position, which in addition to county home economist requires her to oversee the EFNEP program in Dauphin, York, Franklin, and Lancaster counties. She has not yet decided upon definite programs and methods, but she would like to offer hands-on classes for lower-fat cooking and foods with ethnic diversity.

Her research has convinced her of the need for dairy products.

She said, "I really want to see people drink more milk. It's important to prevent osteoporosis. When I was growing up, we drank milk at every meal. It's important that children drink milk during those early years when bone mass is being built."

Engle herself is a fan of plain yogurt. She enjoys the taste and believes this cultured dairy product is an excellent source of calcium needed to prevent osteoporosis.

Engle, influenced by world travel and nutritional studies, enjoys trying ethnic foods, especially if they are nutrient-packed. Here is a recipe that incorporates yogurt and an ethnic flavor from Bulgaria. Bulgarians are known for their longevity — many live to be 100 years of age. Bulgarians consume large quantities of yogurt, which may play a role in their longevity.

Althea Engle is the recently-appointed Lancaster County Cooperative Extension home economist. Engle has worked in many different areas of the U.S. and abroad, mostly in research, and hopes to use her knowlege to teach others proper nutrition.

COLD YOGURT AND CUCUMBER SOUP (TARATOR)

3 small cucumbers
3 cups plain yogurt
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
½ teaspoon salt or to taste
5 tablespoons chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill

Peel the cucumbers. Slice them in half lengthwise. Scoop out and discard the seedy core. Cut the flesh into ¼ -inch cubes.

Place the yogurt in glass, stainless steel, or other noncorrosible bowl. Beat the yogurt 1 minute with a spoon.

Beat in the olive oil one teaspoon at a time. Be sure each new teaspoon of the oil is thoroughly beaten into the yogurt before adding the next teaspoon.

Add the cucumber, garlic, salt, and all but 1 tablespoon of the walnuts to the bowl. Thoroughly blend the ingredients.

Cover the bowl and refrigerate and neatly ladle it into the soup bowls. Garnish the top of each serving with dill and the remaining walnuts. Serve immediately.

Additional keys to success: Buy cucumbers that are small for their variety. Large cucumbers will be exceedingly seedy and their flavor will be too bitter even soaking them in salted water won't completely diminish their bitter note.

Whole-milk yogurt is preferable to the skimmed product. You can decrease the quantity of minced garlic to taste, but if you use less than 1 teaspoon, you shouldn't call your soup tarator. For the sake of color contrast, use nonwhite soup bowls. A deep red, black, or yellow hue is ideal. If fresh dill is unavailable, substitute fresh mint.

EFNEP Advisors Win First-Place Award

Brenda Stallman and Anita Rhawn, nutrition education advisors, won a first-place award for teaching youth at a juvenile detention center.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Brenda Stallman and Anita Rhawn, nutrition education advisors for the Expanded Food and nutrition education Program (EFNEP) of the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, won a first place award from the Pennsylvania Extension Paraprofessionals Association for their "Learn to Earn" 4-H program with youth at Barnes Hall, a juvenile detention center. Called "The Boli Rollers" 4-H Club, the group learned to make money at a "legal" enterprise while making their favorite and most successfully prepared food — stromboli.

While learning techniques of proper food handling for food safety, organization for mass production, and management and marketing for profitability, the youth had "hands on" experience making strombolis and selling them to agency personnel and close friends. A profit of $633 was made and contributed to the purchase of toys for "Toys for Tots." It was the first time in their life that some of the youth had wrapped a present.

Homestead Notes

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Today the weather is beautiful and I should be outside replanting some peas that came up poorly. But, If I do not write this article today I know that I can't tomorrow as I'll spend 15 hours at the polls registering voters. Then the next day my Bible Study group comes here for their last meeting this season. And, I expect to bake a cake, do some more dusting, and arrange flowers on the dining room table.

On Mother's Day some of our children phoned and some sent cards. Philip and Lisa who live on the farm with their two boys brought me a big iced cake which I shared with them.

It seem that little boys get attached to their dogs. One grandson phoned to tell me that his dog died and he said, "Grandma, it was older than you are." Some of our 11 grandchildren play with their dogs so much that they pretend to be dogs too and run around on all fours even if they are three or six years old.

We've had several dogs on our farm over the years. Some were short-haired and some were long-haired but our boys enjoyed playing with all of them. It is nice to have a useful dog but they don't all fill that category. Some just lay on the porch and wait to be petted while others help to bring the cows up to the barn.

For many years I've had a black cat that had a litter of kittens each spring. This year she and her two kittens have disappeared. They have been gone for a week and I fear they won't come back. Our daughter in Texas is a real big admirer of cats and dogs. She had a special pet cat when she was young and she has never outgrown her love of animals. Her cats and German shepherd dogs were flown to her new home in Texas last summer. I don't think those animals know how good they have it down there with her and her husband.

New Berks Dairy Princess Eager To Promote Milk

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Melissa Bicksler, 17, of Myerstown, is looking forward to a year of promoting the dairy industry as the 1994-1995 Berks County dairy princess. The Tulpehocken High School junior won the crown May 14 during a pageant here at the Berks County Agriculture Center.

"I'm really, really excited to be dairy princess," Melissa said about her new crown. "I've always wanted to be dairy princess, ever since I was a little kid and seeing them at the fairs."

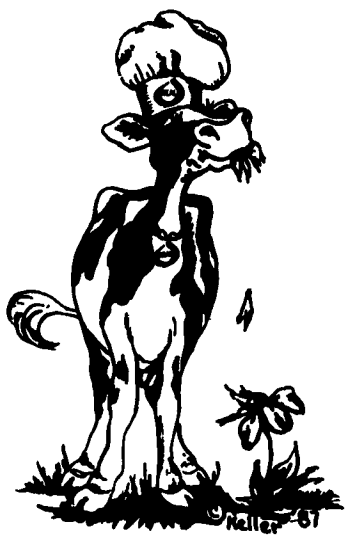
Melissa said she hopes to do more to promote dairy products through the mass media, primarily television. She said she hopes to get across to small children that they need to drink more milk, since their bodies require four servings a day.

"They should drink milk instead of sodas," she said.

She had her chance less than a week after the pageant to begin spreading her message with her first farm tour for two classes of Reading School District first-graders.

Jennifer Davis, 18, of Leesport, Melissa's only opponent, was named alternate dairy princess.

Six-year-old Megan Phillips of Bernville was named Li'l Miss Dairy Princess.



When asked by mistress of ceremonies Jo Painter, a radio deejay for WEEU, why she wanted to be a dairy princess, Megan said, "To have fun."

Melissa, daughter of Cathy and Thomas Melissa, presented a skit along the theme of Goldilocks and the Three Bears who need their milk (at various stages of life) for healthy bodies.

"My grandmother thought of that idea," she said about the skit. "It was my favorite story when I was a kid."

In addition to her chores on her family's 200-acre dairy farm, in which they milk 50 Holsteins, Melissa is involved with a number of school activities. She plays the clarinet in the school band, played for the field hockey team, and was a cheerleader for the basketball team.

A member of her school's FFA, she is chapter secretary and chairperson of the banquet committee. She also is a member of the El-Co 4-H Dairy Club in Lebanon and owns 13 dairy animals.

Davis, a senior at Schuylkill Valley High School, is a member of the National Honor Society and Future Business Leaders of America.

Davis, daughter of Ray and Frances Davis, plans to attend college and study business agriculture.

Also competing for the Li'l Miss title were Kristen Moyer, 6, daughter of Martin and Melissa Moyer of Bernville, and Melissa Schuler, 5, daughter of David and Eileen Schuler of Fleetwood.

Jennifer Grimes, the 1993-1994 Berks County dairy princess and the Pennsylvania dairy princess gave a slide presentation of her year promoting milk with Li'l Miss Justine Stoltzfus and Jennifer's winning the state title.

Alternate dairy princesses Lynne Koinski and Karen Davis also gave short talks about how they enjoyed their duties.

Judges were Tanya Martin, a former state dairy princess of Bucks County; Louise Hutchinson, a dietitian from Schuylkill County; and Larry Schwartz of Atlantic Breeders, Lancaster.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Dusk. My favorite time of day.

The time of day — especially through this hectic planting season — when you begin to slow down, pause and reflect on the how many more acres of corn planting are completed.

Mulching the garden at dusk on this chilly, May evening, I reflected that we were far from finished planting corn or even the day's chores. The Farmer was still running a disk ahead of the planting equipment, evening feeding of the dairy herd was yet to be completed — and there was a brand new calf in the maternity pasture. While I'd missed seeing Mellis and her calf at milking time, they were clearly visible from the garden. The fork, the wheelbarrow and mulching progress were temporarily set aside while I returned to the barn to thaw some frozen colostrum, to make sure the baby had that critical first meal of rich nutrients and antibodies against disease.

Dusk was deepening by the time the colostrum was thawed and warmed. I slipped out the back of the barn quietly, avoiding Solomon. Protective cow mothers and dogs are not a compatible combination. Even with the most gentle of our old cows, I have great respect for the protective, mothering instinct.

This was the second calving for Mellis, the new mother; and her pretty, almost-all-white baby was a welcome heifer calf. Though Mellis watched me like the proverbial hawk, kept moving around her baby and making irritated, short mooing warnings, I didn't feel threatened by her.

Strong and healthy, the calf showed not the slightest interest in nursing the bottle and Mellis kept coaxing her away. After trying to corral the newborn for several minutes and not succeeding in generating an ounce of cooperation, I was about ready to bag the whole business.

A long, low bawling sound went up from about 50 yards away and I glanced up — to see a large, black animal headed right for me.

The bull.

How foolish of me. That he had been moved into this pasture with the springing cows and heifers had never entered my mind, even though I had known he'd been temporarily removed from the heifer herd.

His name is Bold; I wasn't anxious to find out how aggressively he would live up to it. In the brief time he'd been in with the heifers, Bold had been well-behaved and non-aggressive to people. But, it was nearly dark, there was a somewhat agitated cow, a newborn calf, and this pesty two-legged interloper fussing around the pair of them. (And no one knew where I was — not even the dog.)

Bold came trotting to do what bulls do — protect his charges. Though he's just a youngster, not much over a year and weighing less than a thousand pounds, bulls are NEVER to be taken lightly. The pasture is along the woods, with lots of old limbs on the ground. Grabbing a thick solid stick in my hand, I began backing toward the fence that divides the lots.

Bold took a couple more warning steps in my direction. I picked up another stick and winged it at his head. When the stick connected, he turned tail, took off toward the other corner of the pasture, making bawling, complaining, noises.

Despite my pounding heart and shaky knees, I had to laugh. What a wimp.

Thank heaven! And believe me, I did, walking back to the barn still clutching the stick, hanging close to the fence — and keeping an eye on the bull, rapidly disappearing in the dusk toward the cluster of animals in the far corner of the pasture.

Dusk. Time for reflections.

Methinks I better reflect on paying closer attention to where the bull is. Even a wimpy Bold one.

While Country-Western music, cowboy boots and hats, and line dancing is a recent American craze, it's no fad that men have always loved backyard barbecue western-style steaks and the fixings that go with it.

Today's column is dedicated to the food men love — hearty meals and desserts like grandma used to make.

ONION-BACON APPETIZER PIZZA

1 package (10 ounces) refrigerated whole wheat bread dough
¼ cup butter
4 cups thinly sliced onions
½ teaspoon Italian seasoning
8 ounces sour cream onion-bacon dip
6 strips bacon, cooked, drained and crumbled
1½ cups shredded Swiss cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Carefully unroll bread dough and press onto bottom and up sides of buttered 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until dough is golden. Meanwhile, saute onions in butter and Italian seasoning until onions are very soft and butter is absorbed, about 15 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent onions from over browning. Spread warm crust with sour cream dip. Arrange onions over sour cream dip. Sprinkle with bacon and Swiss cheese. Return to oven; bake 15 to 18 minutes or until cheese is melted and pizza is heated through. Cut and serve immediately.

Food retailers will be counting on clear skies and warm weather to greet the Memorial Day holiday, the first long weekend of summer. Fryer chicken, fryer parts, turkey, and selected beef and pork cuts will be the big promotional items at most stores. Ham will be another featured value.

You'll also notice that watermelons, cantaloupes, and strawberries will be in greater supply but not necessarily lower prices.

Shoppers will see that value selections are better at the vegetable counters. Items in greatest supply are the old stand-bys like potatoes and dry onions. Lettuce prices should be a little more inviting, as new production areas are now being harvested. Other featured values include shipping or locally grown products such as asparagus, cucumbers, carrots, sweet corn, green onions and radishes.

Beef cuts selected for promotion this week and next can serve double duty, as cookout meats or as special dishes on the holiday menus. You can cook any cut of meat in a covered grill outdoors that you would dry-roast indoors.

Boneless rolled rump, sirloin tip, and top round of beef lend themselves to a tempting roast on the grill. They also make a handsome oven roast if a cookout does not fit into your scheme of things or the weather doesn't cooperate.

Two chuck cuts that are just as tender, probably juicer, and a little less expensive than round cuts are the chuck tender and inside chuck. Generally, you won't find these cuts in the meat case. You'll have to ask the butcher to cut them special.

The chuck tender is a thin, angular muscle over the blade bone. The inside chuck is a larger, boneless cut. It's an extension of the rib-eye muscle with surrounding muscles included. The inside chuck will feed a dozen people or more.

If you are cooking chuck or round roast outside, figure a ready-to-cook weight of at least one-half to three-quarters of pound per person. People just seem to eat more in an informal setting and a chuck roast always is flavorful.

Use at least one pound of charcoal per pound of meat. A disposable aluminum roasting pan is very suitable to hold the meat.

The cover on the grill will hold the heat in, so there's no need to cover the meat. Figure on at least three to four hours cooking time. Use a meat thermometer to be sure the meat is done and ready to serve.

The name "steak" has an appealing sound because it brings to mind a sizzling, juicy; tender piece of meat. But beware-many retailers are cutting all kinds of meat into thin pieces and calling them steak.

Some steaks are considerably more tender than others. Rib and loin cuts are always more tender than cuts from more active muscles of the shoulder and leg.

The most tender cuts of steak are porterhouse, T-bone, club, sirloin and rib. Moderately tender steaks are those from the sirloin tip, top round, and blade chuck.

Least tender come form the bottom round, eye of round, ch uck and flank.

Less tender steaks may be grilled but it may be better to marinate them for extra tenderness, especially if you plan to cook them medium-well or well-done. All marinades have an acid, such as lemon, vinegar, or tomato, which breaks down the connective tissue that is more prevalent in less tender cuts.

To make sure the marinade works and the meat is tender, soak the meat in the marinade overnight in the refrigerator. For safety sake, keep some of the unused marinade in a separate container to baste the steaks the next day. DO NOT baste steaks with marinade that contains raw meat juices. Have A Safe and Happy Memorial Day.

Kutztown Folk Festival Focuses On Pa. Dutch

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — What is a union church? What is a harvest home? These questions fill the air during the Kutztown Folk Festival, scheduled for Saturday, July 2nd, through Sunday, July 10th from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily.

Most people think of the "Pennsylvania Dutch" as either Old-Order Mennonite or Amish, but 80% of the Pennsylvania Dutch are worldly; what makes one Pennsylvania Dutch is one's ancestors' place or origin. Both groups, "Plain and Fancy," came from the Palatinate region of the Rhine River; however, the worldly group belonged either to the Lutheran Church or the Reformed Church, which is now the United Church of Christ. They had no religious restrictions in the manner of dress or mode of transportation. When both groups arrived in America, they found the foothills of what is now Berks, Montgomery, and Lancaster counties reminded them of their German homeland and contained rich and productive farmland. The Amish and Mennonite and the Lutherans and Reformed, the two "halves" of Pennsylvania Dutch Culture, developed in America, side by side, as the "Plain and Fancy Pennsylvania Dutch."

In their new land, the Lutheran and Reformed immigrants found a land which gave them a good home, plenty of good food, and freedom to worship as they wanted. Unfortunately, they had little cash and were not "house meeting" groups. They wanted a church to worship their God, so the Lutherans and Reformed banded together, pooled their resources, and built churches where they could share expenses, as well as space. One week, the Lutherans would have an early service; next week, the Reformed members would come early. Sunday School classes were often interdenominational, where Bible study, rather than church dogma was taught. These combined houses of worship became known as "union churches," and a few still exist today. The "Old Oley Union Church" is a representation of those early churches and will be on display during the festival.

In the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, tithing is important; it is a promise to give 10% of your income to your church. Since cash was always in short supply, but food was not, the Pennsylvania Dutch farmers met their tithe with products from their labor. Each fall, the church members would bring corn meal, flour, canned and fresh vegetables, and smoked meats to the Harvest Home. These offerings were displayed for everyone to see and were used to "pay" at least part of the minister's salary. Some of the produce was taken to market and sold to the city dwellers, so that the congregation had money to buy those things for which they could not barter. The display in the union church is a representation of those hard-working people's dedication to their beliefs.

For more information on the festival at 461 Vine Lane, Kutztown, call (610) 683-8707.

Veggie Fries Add Crunch

Your friends and family will love this adventurous variation on "boring" vegetables. Whether the familiar — such as potatoes, onions or zucchini — or the exotic — like chayote squash, jicama or Jerusalem artichokes — fried veggies with a crunchy coating and tender center have an almost universal appeal.

This recipe makes a great side dish or snack and is a fun way to serve some vegetables you may have seen but never tried. And fear not! People everywhere are learning that foods fried correctly don't absorb much oil and can be included as part of a balanced diet. So we say fry it, you'll like it!

Vegetable Preparation:

Spanish Onions — Peel a large Spanish onion and cut into 1/2 inch slices. Break apart into rings.

Green, Red and Yellow Peppers — (The different colors look great coming through the batter.) Use small to medium-sized peppers. Rinse and cut in half lengthwise. Remove the seeds and top. Cut the halves in 3 to 4 pieces lengthwise, depending on size of the pepper.

Zucchini — Peel and cut into 1/4 inch thick slices.

Carrots — Peel and cut into 1/4 inch thick slices.

Jerusalem Artichokes — (Not really an artichoke, but a cousin of the sunflower, also referred to as sunchokes.) Peel and rinse. Pat dry with a paper towel. Cut into 1/4 inch round slices.

Chayote Squash — Peel and rinse. Pat dry with a paper towel. Cut in half and then slice in 1/4 inch strips.

Baby Corn — Fresh or canned. Rinse or drain and pat dry with a paper towel.

Hearts of Palm — Drain and pat dry with a paper towel. Cut in half.

Artichoke Hearts (canned in brine, not marinated) — Drain and pat dry with a paper towel. Cut in half and hold for use.

Button Mushrooms — Rinse and pat dry with a paper towel.

Jicama — Peel and cut into 1/4 inch thick slices, approximately 4 inches by 2 inches in size.

Batter:

2 cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon white pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon garlic powder
1¼ cups beer (add a little more if necessary to thin batter)
2 tablespoons Wesson Vegetable Oil
2 eggs

1. Sift the flour, cornstarch, white pepper, salt and garlic powder into a mixing bowl. Using a fork, combine dry ingredients.

2. Separate the egg yolks from the egg whites. Place the egg whites in a stainless steel bowl, cover and refrigerate for use later in the recipe.

3. Beat the egg yolks and the Wesson Vegetable Oil together. Add the egg yolk/oil mixture and the beer to the dry ingredients. Using a wire whip, blend the ingredients, but don't overmix. Batter will remain a little lumpy. Place the batter in the refrigerator for at least one hour.

4. Just before you are ready to fry your vegetables, beat the egg whites with a wire whip until they form a peak. Fold the beaten egg whites into the batter. You are now ready to fry!

Clever Tip: Since you're the chef du jour, perhaps you will choose to add some seasonings to your batter that you particularly enjoy. Here's a couple that we* toss in when the mood strikes us: curry (for an Indian flair) or basil and oregano (that's Italian!).

Cooking Directions:

1. Make the vegetable batter as described above.

2. Heat 4 cups Wesson Vegetable Oil to 350 degrees in a wok or fryer.

3. Prepare each vegetable you want to fry according to the directions above. Dip each prepped vegetable piece in the batter and carefully place in the hot oil. Cook until golden brown. If necessary, turn the vegetable pieces while cooking to brown evenly.

4. Remove with a slotted spoon and drain the vegetables on a rack and/or paper towels: If you have a lot of vegetables to prepare, hold the fried vegetables on an appropriate plate, covered with paper towels, in a 175 degree oven.

5. In the center of a large serving platter, place a small bowl of your favorite dipping sauce to accompany the vegetables. If nothing else comes to mind, go with the perfect standby: ranch dressing. Arrange your veggies around the dipping sauce and ENJOY!

U.S. Farmers Try To Reduce Chemical Dependence

By Pat Durkin
National Geographic News Service

CHESTERTOWN, Md. — The new corn crop unfurling in four sandy fields on Remington Farms not far from the Chesapeake Bay represents a revolution that could shake the U.S. agricultural community at its very roots.

Responding to nationwide concerns about human health and the environment, agribusinesses are industriously looking for ways to farm with fewer chemicals and still make a profit. They want to reduce their chemical dependence before government does it for them.

"If we don't, chemicals could be legislated out of existence," says Mike Borel, who oversees the Remington Farms demonstration project for DuPont, one of the world's largest agricultural chemical producers.

Farmers insist that they can't raise crops at a price consumers are willing to pay without using some chemicals. Chemical companies complain that the public doesn't understand pesticides.

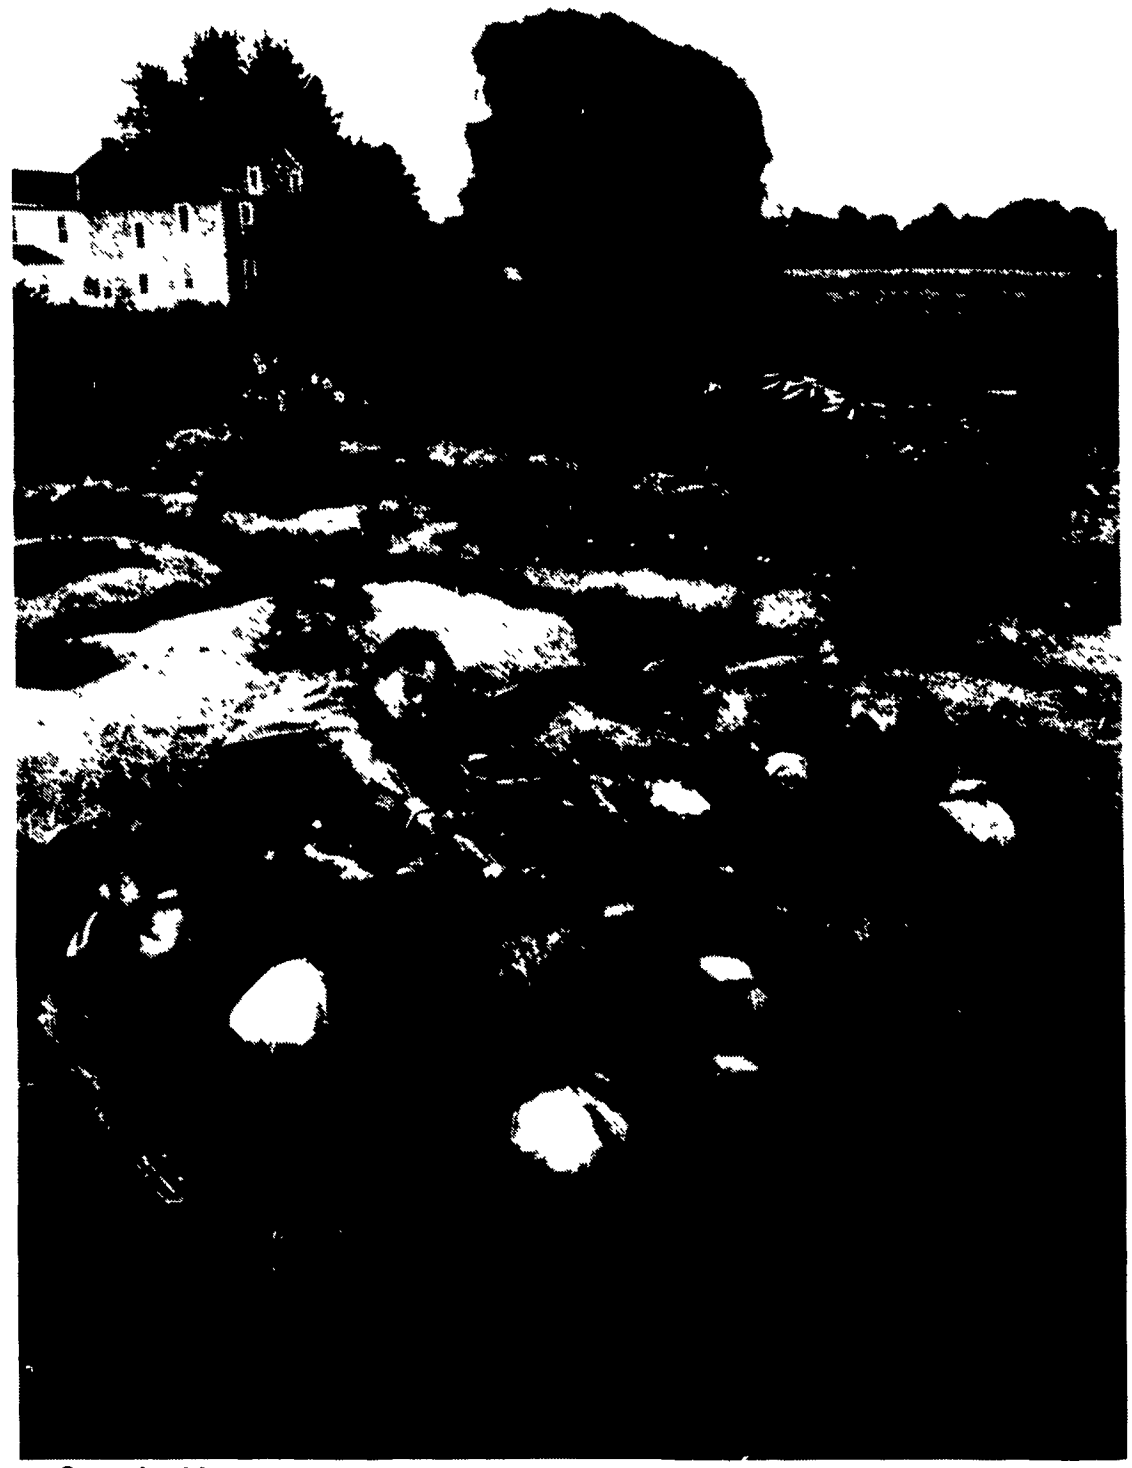
People point to a legacy of DDT and more recent scares about alar and cyanide residues on apples and grapes. Pesticide use has tripled during the past 30 years. The National Academy of Sciences warned this year that pesticides could be a major threat to young children.

"We used to think in terms of gallons. Now we think in terms of grams," says Adele Logan, of the Washington-based National Agricultural Chemicals Association.

The four fields at the 3,000-acre Remington Farms, a wildlife preserve for deer, ducks and geese within the Chesapeake watershed, will demonstrate different approaches to growing corn with fewer chemicals. The harvest and the environment will be monitored for evidence of contamination.

Sponsors hope the project will help calm consumers and send a warning to reluctant farmers. It is considered the most significant effort yet to try to farm without contaminating water supplies or harming wildlife.

"The point is to make it believable," says Raymond Forney, the agronomist who designed and manages the demonstration for an alliance of some of the biggest agribusinesses.



Growning bigger and better cabbages and other vegetables and fruits without relying on chemicals is a hope of American agriculture. A few major growers are experimenting with no-chemicals methods. But even advocates concede that organically-grown produce is too expensive at the consumer level for today's mass market.

Rodale Institute, one of the nation's largest organic farming organizations, is a partner along with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency and several universities.

One Remington field will be managed like a conventional farm, with scheduled applications of chemicals. Programs for the other three rely on progressively fewer chemicals and more biological controls — crop rotation, nitrogen-fixing cover crops, and low-till cultivation.

Each field has been sculpted as a separate watershed. Runoff from each funnels through its own spillway, where electronic monitors automatically test for contaminants. Pipes and and wells under each field collect water as it seeps through the ground.

Each method will be evaluated for product quality, cost, and effects on water supplies and wildlife.

Throughout the United States, other growers and researchers are searching for their own ways to cut chemical dependence. They're pitting "good" insects against bad, developing sensors that determine soil health, shooting aerial videos that show weed infestations, inventing industrial-strength weed-whackers, and hybridizing disease-resistant plants.

Chemical companies, for example, are developing herbicides so targeted that they can go after a specific enzyme of a specific weed, then break down into harmless compounds within days.

What the agricultural industry is aiming for isn't exactly organic farming, although a few major growers are experimenting with the strictly no-chemicals approach to see how far they can take it.

"To be successful, it's got to be economically driven," says James Frevert, president of the Denver-based American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers.

At the consumer level, organically grown produce is too expensive for the mass market. Even organic advocates concede that.

"If you have to pay more for healthier food, that raises questions about who you're raising food for," Rodale's Michael Sands tells National Geographic.

The agricultural community finally settled on an approach called "sustainable agriculture," a flexible concept that falls somewhere between organic and the chemical-intensive practices that have spread through farmlands since World War II.

Sustainable agriculture, which allows farmers a respectable profit and selective use of chemicals, became a national goal with the 1985 and 1990 federal farm bills. The Clinton administration wants to reduce pesticide use on 75 percent of the nation's farmland by 2000 and reduce the pesticide residues allowable on fruits and vegetables.

Not everyone has given up entirely on the organic approach. With the right research, ways can be found to make large-sclae organic farming profitable, insists Bob Scowcroft, executive director of the Organic Farming Research Foundation in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Chemical companies and large universities, he says "just don't fund research in organic farming."

Maryland Lamb And Wool Festival Attracts Crowds

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

HOWARD CO., Md. — The twenty-first annual Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival was held at the Howard County Fairgrounds on Friday, May 6, through Sunday, May 8. Sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association, the festival featured more than 1,000 sheep from across the United States and Canada. Thirty different breeds could be seen in the sheep breeds display barn, and later on, side by side in the parade of breeds. Some of the sheep were entered in competition, but all were animals bred especially for wool production. Sheep breeders and producers use the festival as an opportunity to make private treaty sales of the finest breeding stock and young animals. The fleece show and sale offered hundreds of high quality fleeces for competition and sale.

The Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival is known as the largest event of its kind east of the Mississippi and it lived up to its reputation by attracting about 40,000 visitors.

Kathy Davidson of Potosi Sheep and Berry Farm in Glen Rock, Pennsylvania said she had been coming to the festival for about eight years, two years as a vendor. "I come to sell wool and it is always a success," she said. "It is the greatest show going!"

Sheep were not the only reason to attend. Other wool producing animals found at the festival included llamas, angora rabbits, and mohair and angora goats. In one barn a tiny donkey stood watch over a small flock of sheep. "They're guard donkeys," said Ellie McGaugh of Randy Irwin's Triple L Farms, "and they traditionally protect the sheep from dogs and coyotes and watch over the flock."

More than 200 craft and supply booths sold their wares to the public. The interested buyer could purchase anything from spinning wheels, carders, and weaving looms to sheep collectables. Wool related products included raw wool, dyed wools and fleeces as well as intricate finished garments. There were also a row of food booths with almost anything imaginable to eat, including lamb kabobs, lamb barbeque, and lamb potpies.

While Robert Mitchell, bagpiper strolled the grounds dressed in kilts playing lilting magical sounds, others in traditional Gaelic garb strummed harps and sang. Free seminars covered topics such as felting, rug weaving, Navaho rugs, and knitting repair. A favorite among the crowds was "Drop in and Spin" where a visitor could learn to spin. According to festival chairperson Gwen Handler, the "Sheep to Shawl" contest is also a crowd favorite. This contest brought together teams of four to race against each other and the clock. Beginning with a sheep, the team had to shear, spin and weave wool from their animal, finishing with a garment that was inspected by the judges. All this was accomplished in a three-hour time limit.

In the bottom field, demonstrations of working sheep dogs showed the inate ability of the border collie breed as they herded sheep, guided only by the whistle of the shepherd, singling out specific lambs on command. While the Maryland Grand Lamb Cook-Off was taking place in the kitchen area, herdsmen sweated bullets in the shearing competition going on in the barn area.

Old-Fashioned Sourdough Rises In Popularity

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PITMAN (Schulykill Co.) — Confused about sourdough baking? See all those recipes that seem to give conflicting advice?

The reason for conflicting recipes stems from several different methods of preparing a sourdough yeast. The confusion comes from thinking the methods are the same since each is called sourdough.

Three different methods of making sourdough will be examined in this article.

Sourdough is a type of yeast production. It was the most common way used to make raised bread in the years before packaged yeast was available.

People still enjoy the taste of this old-fashioned bread and the many other baked items that can be made from it.

One of the oldest methods and the one used by our ancestors on the wagon train, is still made today by Johannes Zinzendorf of the Christiansbrunn Kloster in Pitman.

This method requires no store-bought yeast and is easy to prepare the starter from potatoes.

Sourdough gets its name from the way it captures yeast fungus in the air. Yeast fungus is not harmful since it is naturally occuring and we constantly breathe the spores that are in the air.

"There are no secrets — just common sense and experience to make sourdough bread," said Zinzendorf. "It was the most common way of raising bread in Pennsylvania in the 1600s because it works and is almost impossible to kill if it is done correctly. That's why it was taken in the wagon trains."

Zinzendorf said, "Doing successful sourdough is like successful farming. Just like you need to prepare the soil properly, you need to prepare the mixing bowl ingredients to provide a proper nutrient base."

According to Zinzendorf, the potato-based recipe is excellent as the potato provides a better source of starch and carbohydrates than flour alone. The sugar and salt are also necessary so when the airborn yeast lands on the mxiture, it begins to multiply. The life cycle is short and as the fungus dies, it emits gas that are the bubbles in the yeast.

"The major misconception is that sourdough is only viable if it is frothy and bubbling, that is not the case," Zinzendorf said.

"Often it froths and bubbles as it begins to ferment. A brownish liquid covers the top — this is alcohol. This fermentation is not only natural, it must be allowed to happen — that is what makes sourdough sour. It provides most of the flavor. Without it, you get a very bland result that many people seem to like, but it is not an authetic sourdough."

He said that the fermentation does not kill the yeast, it preserves it. There is no reason to freeze it.

"I've left mine in a crock in the spring for months at a time and it always comes back. Refrigeration works just as well," Zinzendorf said.

To rejuvenate yeast activity, make a new batch of potato/water/sugar/salt like you do to start the sourdough. This time, add one to two cups flour to make a sponge. Add to the fermented soughdough and let it rise in a warm place for six to 24 hours or until it starts to bubble and froth. Use this in recipes, but always save a few cups to return to the crock for using the next time.

Sourdough is tough. It does not need to be treated gently.

Sourdough rises overnight when placed in a warm area.

Old-fashioned sourdough bread is baked outside in a bake oven that Zinzendorf built in the same style as his ancestors used.

SOURDOUGH STARTER SPONGE

Peel and slice 3 medium-sized potatoes

Boil in 2 quarts water until soft. Drain and save water. Mash potatoes and return to water. Add:

4 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt

Let stand uncovered for 3 days until mixture begins to bubble. Put in crock, cover, and store in refrigerator until ready to use.

The day before each weekly baking day, Zinzendorf prepares the sponge. Into a crock, he puts the following:

3 handfuls of high-gluten bread flour
4 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt

Meanwhile boil three potatoes, strain and mash. Put potato water into a crock. Mix and add mashed potatatoes, sourdough with enough lukewarm water to make 1½ gallons starter. Let set by fire or warm place until evening. It should froth and foam.

Before going to bed, grease dough box. Put in two quarts bread flour, add starter but reserve 2 quarts for the next baking day.

Mix and knead ingredients, adding flour until dough is dry. Cover and set by fire or stove to rise overnight.

The following day, Zinzendorf bakes his bread in an outdoor bake oven. For baking in a regular oven, separate the dough into individual loaves and let rise.

Bake in 350 degree oven for about one hour.

HERMAN YEAST STARTER

A more popular sourdough method is often referred to as Herman Yeast Starter or Amish Friendship dough. The starter requires the use the store-bought active dry yeast. These recipes are from Doris Brown of Pine Grove.

HERMAN OR FRIENDSHIP STARTER

1 cup sugar
½ cup warm water
2 envelopes active dry yeast
2 cups milk
2 cups flour

Sprinkle one tablespoon sugar over warm water. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand in warm place until doubled in size, about 10 minutes. Mix milk, remaining sugar, flour, and yeast mixture. Place in plastic or glass container about the size of a 5-quart incream container. Stir using wooden spoon (metal retards yeast growth).

Cover loosely. Let stand in warm place overnight. Next day, refrigerate. Stir daily with wooden spoon. On fifth day, use 1 cup and give one cup as a gift. Feed remaining starter with 1 cup flour, 1 cup milk, and ½ cup sugar. Use 1 cup every 5 days, giving 1 cup to a friend and feeding remaining mixture.

HERMAN WHEAT AND HONEY STARTER

½ cup honey or brown sugar
½ cup warm water
2 envelopes active dry yeast
2 cups milk
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup white flour
1 tablespoon ginger

Stir one tablespoon honey or brown sugar into warm water. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand in warm place until double in size, about 10 minutes. Mix milk, remaining honey or brown sugar, flour, ginger, and yeast mixture. Place in plastic or glass container about the size of a 5 quart ice cream bucket. Stir using a wooden spoon or paddle (metal retards yeast growth). Cover loosely. Let stand in warm place overnight. Next day: refrigerate, stir every day with wooden spoon. On 5th day, measure out 1 cup to bake with, 1 cup for gifts. Feed remaining starter with 1 cup white flour, 1 cup milk, and ½ cup sugar. Stir well. Refrigerate and stir daily. On 10th day, give 1 cup to a friend. Use 1 cup in recipe, plus feed as before. Thereafter, use starter almost daily and feed every 5th day.

HERMAN WHOLE-WHEAT APPLESAUCE CAKE

½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup honey
½ cup butter
½ cup shortening
1½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 cup Herman wheat and honey starter
1½ cups applesauce
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon rum flavoring
1½ cups white flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice and ground cloves
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup raisins, optional
1 cup broken walnuts, optional

Cream together sugars, honey, butter, shortening, and salt until light and fluffy. Add eggs one at a time mixing thoroughly. Add Herman starter, applesauce, vanilla and rum flavorings.

In another bowl, combine flours, spices, baking powder, and baking soda. Mix thoroughly with wire whisk. Fold into creamed mixture. Fold in raisins and nuts. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch tube pan or bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees, 75-80 minutes or until toothpick inserted in cake comes out clean.

HERMAN COFFEE CAKE

1 cup sugar

Importance Of Immunization

A growing number of older people are helping to save young lives and maintain children's health as well as America's wealth.

What they're doing is urging their families and friends with young children to make sure the youngsters are properly immunized, reports the National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare, one of the groups and taking part in the National Immunization Campaign.

Each year, says Martha A. McSteen, National Committee president, millions of American children go unprotected against pertussis, diphtheria, polio and other deadly diseases for which vaccines are available.

In fact, the United States has one of the worst immunization rates in the Western Hemisphere. We're behind Cuba and Colombia, for example. Here, one in four children have not been fully vaccinated against polio. Nearly half the measles cases reported during the measles epidemic of 1989 occurred among unvaccinated minority children under five years old.

What's more every dollar spent on immunization now saves $10 in health care costs later. Part of the problem is lack of health care insurance. Not only are approximately eight million children in the United States uninsured entirely, tens of millions more have such inadequate insurance, they are not covered for basic preventive care, including immunizations. Fortunately, community health centers and public clinics often offer vaccinations at little or no cost.

Vaccinations need to be started before school age. Many people are making sure the children in their lives are protected against:

1. Measles, mumps and rubella with an MMR vaccine.
2. Polio.
3. Diphtheria, tetanus (lockjaw) and pertussis (whooping cough) with a DTP shot.
4. Haemophilus influenza type b (meningitis and other serious infections) with a Hib vaccine.
5. Hepatitis B (liver infections).

Ask your doctor for advice or call the National Immunization Campaign hotline at 1-800-525-6789.

Old-Fashioned Sourdough Rises In Popularity

HERMAN DOUBLE CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

12 tablespoons butter, room temperature
1 cup sugar
1 cup packed brown sugar
4 eggs
1½ cups flour
6 tablespoons cocoa powder
1 cup Herman starter
1 tablespoon vanilla
¾ cup chocolate chips
½ cup chopped walnuts

In a large bowl, cream butter and sugars. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. In medium bowl, stir together flour and cocoa alternately and about half at a time. Add flour mixture and starter to egg mixture. Stir in vanilla, chocolate chips, and nuts.

Spread in well-greased 7½ x11½ x½ -inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes until center springs back when lightly touched with finger. Makes 24 brownies.

FRIENDSHIP STARTER (Fruit Method)

Another method uses fermented fruit. It, too, is called Friendship Starter. The starter requires 15 days until it is ready to add other ingredients. Then it takes 30 days before it is ready to bake, but according to Gloria Sweigart of Manheim, it is fun to watch as the days go by. Do not refrigerate the full 30 days.

FRIENDSHIP STARTER Fruit Method

Strain juice from:
1 large can peaches
1 large can crushed pineapple
1 jar maraschino cherries
¾ cup granulated sugar

Mix and measure juice to make 1½ cups (use fruit as desired in other recipes).

Put starter in covered bowl or jar; stir every day for 15 days until set. Do not refrigerate during this time.

FRIENDSHIP FRUIT CAKE

Day 1:
1½ cups starter juice
2½ cups sugar
1 large can sliced peaches and juice

Mix in large bowl, cover with lid or plastic wrap, not foil.

Stir every day for nine days.

10th Day:
1 large can crushed pineapple and juice
2½ cups sugar
Stir for 9 more days

20th day:
Add:
2 jars maraschino cherries
Juice from only one jar of the maraschino cherries
2½ cups sugar
Stir for 9 more days.

30th Day:

Drain juice from fruit. Divide juice into four 1½ cups (any extra can be added to fruit). Keep one starter juice and give 3 to friends and the recipe.

To bake: Divide fruit into 3 equal parts, use one part fruit,
1 box yellow cake mix
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup raisins
4 eggs
1 small box vanilla instant pudding
⅓ cup vegetable oil

Beat with spoon. Bake in a greased and floured tube or bundt pan about 1 hour or until done at 350 degrees.

Repeat the above recipe two more times. This makes three nice cakes and may be frozen after it is baked.

When cool, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar if desired.

Starter keeps indefinitely in refrigerator.

Zinzendorf tries to keep things as authentic as possible. He places the dough on rye baskets and boards to rise before inserting in the outdoor bake oven.

Grange Holds Legislative Banquet

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Sheila Knotwell of Kennett Grange was awarded the Grange Award for Public Service by Pomona Grange #3 of Chester County at its recent legislative banquet. Ms. Knotwell is director of La Casa del Pueblo, an agency that assists with housing in southern Chester County, and she meets the criteria of the award by going "above and beyond the call of duty through personal service and caring." She augmented her associate degree in business administration by taking job specific courses in mortgage planning and economic development and sits on boards of human service agencies at all levels, including Kennett Area Human Services Committee, Chester Co. Housing Resource Board, and Regional Housing Legal Services Board.

During her two years of Grange membership, Ms. Knotwell has participated wholeheartedly in Grange activities — helping with programs, working suppers, volunteering for projects — in addition to working overtime at La Casa del Pueblo when necessary. She was nominated by her Grange because of her caring attitude and selfless service.

This year's guest speaker, Jennifer Cummins, legislative asst. at the National Grange office in Washington, D.C., addressed the concerns of Grangers that the President's proposed health care plan ignores the needs of rural Americans and may be harmful to small business, a category that includes many farmers.

Legislators in attendance were Congressmen Robert Walker, Rep. Arthur Hershey, Rep. Joseph Pitts, and Commissioner Andrew Dinniman.

Pomona #3 consists of 17 local Granges throughout Chester County.

Lancaster Farm Women Society #18 hosted by Rhoda Herr met in Mellinger's Mennonite Church on Saturday, May 14. The meeting was conducted by vice president Roberta Shepherdson.

Devotions by Elizabeth Diem contrasted the discipline, responsibilities, family rules, etc. between today's children and the children, now grown, of yesteryear — She also recounted the results in young adulthood between the two methods of raising children — parental authority and two unlimited permission.

The program by Sandra Yocum was a presentation of many dolls, showing native dress, ethic, heritage, quaint and bridal examples.

Mrs. Yocum and husband conduct research and live on the Penn State Research Farm near Landisville.

Twenty ladies and five guests enjoyed the afternoon of fellowship.

Long Hours Of Community Service Cornerstone Of 4-H

NEWARK, Del. — Embedded in the 4-H pledge is a commitment to service and to community. Delaware's 4-H clubs take this commitment seriously and find that they are having fun while giving of themselves.

Kathy Carlisle, president of Sussex County's 4-H Leaders, says all clubs find some way to give community service. From beach cleanups to walkathons, from bike safety to Seeing Eye dogs, she's seen every club and every 4-H'er reap the rewards of voluntarism.

One club regularly raises money for the Bridgeville library by sponsoring a petting zoo. This is a project that benefits the 4-H'ers' families, friends and neighbors. Other club-sponsored activities with immediately visible results are highway cleanups and wetlands adoption.

Carlisle says that in addition to group activities, clubs encourage community service in individual project areas. For example, children with a horticulture project may be encouraged to plant flowers at a school or retirement home. Those taking a foods and nutrition or breads project may donate goods to a bake sale.

In Kent County, the Houston Cardinals 4-H Club has a tradition of community service. For 22 years, the club has supported Milford Memorial Hospital's Annual Spring Fair with a ball toss booth. All proceeds go to the hospital to buy new equipment and supplies. The club averages a $200 donation each spring. At 25 cents a toss, the 4-H'ers are kept busy staffing the booth.

Carol Argo, adult leader of the Cardinals, says the booth is a family, as well as a club, tradition. Her father was a member of the Cardinals when he was a boy and Argo was a member of the club when it began the booth. Now her children are involved.

Argo says the older members of her 4-H clubs throughout the county help younger members learn about volunteering and service. She points out that without the help of these teens, it would be impossible to offer summer day camps for younger children.

"The sense of giving back to the community begins when you are a member of 4-H," Argo says. "You learn that you are an active part of caring for your community."

New Castle County's Fantastics 4-H club also serves its community through a variety of projects.

Adult leader Karen Charles says when kids join her club they make a commitment to participate in at least one service project. Some members may donate 5 hours of service, while others who take citizenship projects may donate as many as 60 hours a year.

Charles says a favorite group project is packaging food at the Food Bank in Newark, which distributes goods to individuals and families in need. In an afternoon, half a dozen children may bag a thousand pounds of pasta or hundreds of ears of corn.

One of the most difficult projects in terms of real labor involved was a seasonal cleaning of Wilmington's Ronald McDonald House, which offers housing to out-of-town families who have children hospitalized here.

"That was work," says Charles. "Washing windows — more than 100 — and cleaning and putting away outdoor toys and furniture."

She adds that other projects, such as planting beach grass, have been pure fun and balance out the hard labor of other projects.

Citizenship, leadership and the commitment to community service are a common thread running through 4-H clubs statewide. Whether in individual or group projects, pledging hands to larger service is a cornerstone of 4-H.

Berks Society 6

Ten members of the Berks County Society of Farm Women Group #6 enjoyed an Everybody's Birthday Party at the Pleasantville Diner. A poem was read by Joyce Mast, and a funny letter was read by Dorothy Wagner. Flower plants were given to each one present and gifts were exchanged.

President Janet Schlegel installed Karen Hoffman as a new member. Plans were finalized for those going to the Spring Rally.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Pearl Hoffman, Reading.

JOHN DEERE POWR-MIZER™ FORAGE HARVESTE

Consistent cut, consistent saving

A John Deere Powr-Mizer Forage Harvester provides more than a uniform length-of-cut, it delivers savings that are every bit as regular. So you harvest more of your crop efficiently – without squandering horsepower.

The exclusive Dura-Drum™ cutterhead is fully enclosed. It can't fill with silage like cage-type designs. That means cut crop doesn't get recut, so all of your horsepower remains productive.

You'll also like the way the short, segmented knives save you money and time. When damaged, John Deere replacement knife costs $13.03* compared to $77.32* for a full-width knife found on competitor's cutterheads. Here's another bonus – it's easy to replace a John Deere knife. Simply loosen three bolts, slide out the old knife, slide in the replacement, then retighten the bolts.

To start saving power, money, and quali forage, check out a Powr-Mizer Forage Harvester at your John Deere dealer toda

CONTRACTS ARE BUSINESS AGREEMENTS

John H. Schwartz, Ph.D.
Lancaster County
Extension Director

Many times I have heard the statement "farmers growing birds on contract are not business people anymore, but a form of hired labor."

This should be very far from the truth. The farmer growing birds on contract and feels like he is only hired labor is in trouble. To achieve maximum income from a contract, a farmer must be first and always a business person and an outstanding farmer.

A contract is a written business agreement between two parties. It is the ideal method of doing business. Non-farm businesses have known the advantages of contracts for years and is a mainstay in their business arrangements.

Contracts take the price uncertainty out of business. This now allows the business person to concentrate his or her energies on managing those items they have control over — the production process. By using contracts, the business person is reducing his or her risk and insuring the possibility of staying in business for the long haul.

This is no different for the poultry farmer. The farmer needs to see himself as a business person responsible for upholding his end of the deal. When working with a company, you are producing poultry according to that company's program.

You are also managing your budgeted costs. Now you can focus all your energies on controlling costs and producing birds according to the company's program. You are responsible to manage the birds to achieve uniform production. This involves many skills and management decisions. These include ordering the correct feed, operating the ventilation system properly, maintaining the equipment and building, and identifying and correcting problems.

By working together with your poultry company representative, you should discuss problems and possible solutions. Know what type of product the company wants and work on producing that type of product. Do not be satisfied with average. Constantly be looking for better ways to do things and challenge your service person in helping you achieve better results.

Since a contract is a business agreement between two parties, try to be present when the service person makes his weekly visit. This helps to improve communication and increases the chances of small problems being taken care of before they become major ones. Also, the better both business people know each other, the easier it is to work as a team.

Teamwork is very important if the contract arrangement is to work. It is very important to the survival of agriculture for all contract farmers to view themselves as farmers and business people. They need to do all the things good farmers and business people do. They need to be responsible citizens contributing to their communities and profession.

They also need to be good, honest, and respected business people. This means honoring all the agreements in the contract, practice the best husbandry skills, and manage the production process. A contract is a business agreement that tests your management skills and your ability as a poultry farmer.

Are you the best you can be?

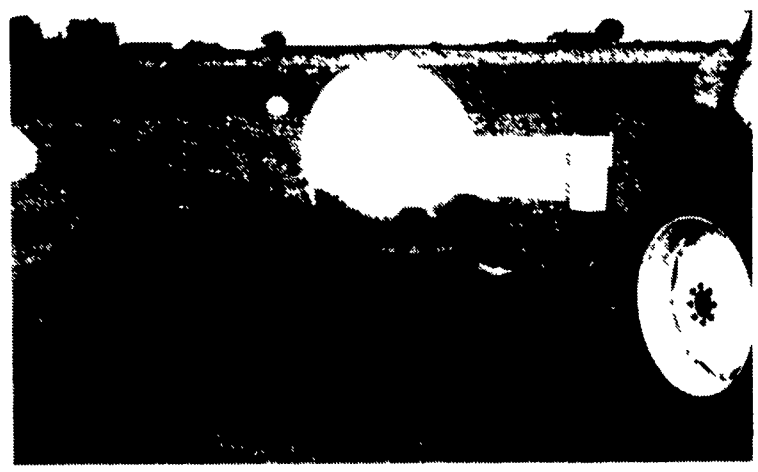
TOP 10 REASONS



WHY YOU SHOULD BUY A TANCO BALE WRAPPER

TANCO	COMPETITION
1. Five (5) points of support on turntable: Four heavy duty rollers add stability and support to the perimeter of the turntable in addition to the main central shaft. This allows Tanco wrappers to safely wrap the heaviest silage bales on rough or uneven ground.	Competition uses one central shaft to support the entire turntable mechanism
2. Single solid belt on turntable: The single belt enables Tanco wrappers to effectively wrap misshapen or soggy bales providing a positive surface for bale rotation.	Competition uses either no belts between rollers, or multiple belts which can allow bales to sag and slip
3. Adjustable extendable axle: On trailed models the extendable axle provides a wide, stable wheel base when loading bales. Eliminates the need for counter weights.	Competition must add counterweights or tandem axles as options to effectively handle silage bales.
4. Top rollers on turntable: Extra rollers provide security to keep bales in place when wrapping at high RPM's (25) or on uneven terrain.	Competition - None.
5. Unloading ramp on trailed models: The ramp allows bales to be unloaded gently. When a wrapped bale falls hard it can "burp." Once it "burps" the bale does not re-seal. The ramp gives a smooth transition between the ground and turntable.	Competition - optional drop mats or ramps available
6. Optional "High Rise" axle kit for soft ground conditions.	Compare!
7. Models available to fit every individual need, including machines to wrap big square bales. Tanco was first to build a large square bale wrapper, and continues to produce advancements in bale wrapping technology.	Limited product lines
8. Positive bale positioning: While being wrapped, bales are rotated the exact distance required to obtain optimum coverage.	Competition uses continuous hydraulic advance Bales can slip or over-rotate giving an uneven wrap
9. Durability: Tanco's subframe is one of the heaviest of any machines available in North America. The low profile design keeps silage bales closer to the ground with a low center of gravity for stability. Tanco's features are the result of years of experience and input from hundreds of individual, and commercial users.	Competition - Compare!
10. Price: From a basic 3 point Model AW200, to the trailed Model AW400 with automatic cut & start, bale and batch counter, and tractor seat controls, Tanco prices are very competitive. Pay less for more features and durability than any other bale wrapper on the market.	Competition - Compare!

Program Guarantees Relief From Flies

MADISON, Wis. — Orkin Exterminating Company has introduced a program that controls flies in dairy barns with only minimal effort on the farmer's part.

The Farm Fly Control Program already has proven so effective that Orkin supports it with a money-back guarantee.

"We controlled flies in more than 8,000 barns during 1992 and 1993 — the first two years of the Farm Fly Control Program," said Larry Rufledt, Orkin's director of operations, agribusiness services. "Today, through treatment provided by our network of local service centers, dairymen in 11 states are getting much-needed relief from the nuisance and reduced productivity flies can cause."

Rufledt anticipates the program will be offered in three additional states during 1994.

Soil-Applied Ridomil Available In Packets

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Ciba Plant Protection has expanded its Ridomil® product line to make the soil-applied fungicide available in premeasured water-soluble packets.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently approved Ridomil 50WSP. It is available nationwide and is used as a soil treatment on more than 150 fruit, vegetable, and row crops. It controls certain diseases caused by the Oomycete class of fungi, including black shank and blue mold in tobacco, and diseases caused by Phytophthora in citrus and vegetables.

Ciba decided to offer the proven, systemic fungicide in water-soluble packages for the convenience of premeasured packaging, the safety of handling 50-percent less product, and eliminate the hassle and cost of container disposal, according to Jerry Maynard, product manager.

Case Introduces No-Till Drill

RACINE, Wis. — J I Case is beginning production of the Case International 5400 no-till drill, a high-precision drill specially designed to work in high-residue conditions.

The new no-till drill comes in 15- or 20-foot sizes, with 7-, 7.5-, 8- or 10-inch spacing.

"One of every two farmers buying a drill is looking for a no-till model," said Kurt Schenck, J I Case product manager-implements. "Case IH dealers have been providing no-drills by coupling our current 5400 drills with compatible coulter carts. Now, the farmer can purchase a single, integrated unit that's designed specifically for no-till applications."

The 5400 no-till drill features drill, caddy and choice of coulters in one package. The unique quick hitch operates independently from the rear hitch and caddy mainframe, so the coulters can be set without affecting the position of the drill. "This makes the drill practical for situations when the coulters aren't needed," said Schenck.

The Case International 5400 No-till Drill integrates drill, caddy and choice of coulters in one package to provide excellent seed-to-soil contact and optimum germination even in high-residue conditions.

Gleaner Introduces Combine Headers

ATLANTA, Ga. — With the introduction of its new Model 400 rigid (cutterbar) and pickup headers, Gleaner continues to deliver the performance, easy maintenance and capacity that custom harvesters and small grain and seed producers demand from their harvesting machinery.

Available in five cutting widths from 18 to 30 feet to complement the high capacity R-Series Gleaner combines, the Model 400 rigid (cutterbar) headers are designed to match any farm size and cropping program.

With one extra foot of width over the previous 24-foot size, a new 25-foot header is capable of handling 10 rows without the worry of "squeezing" out the last row, when harvesting 30-inch spacing row crops.

Other available sizes include 18-, 20-, 27- and 30-foot models. For even more versatility, all rigid models are availble with a standard five-bat metal reel or the new polytine, six-tube pickup reel.

Available in five cutting widths from 18 to 30 feet to complement the high capacity R-Series Gleaner combines, the Model 400 rigid (cutterbar) headers are designed to match any farm size and cropping program.

We hear you.

We know that making hay is a tough business. It takes a healthy share of your precious time, and leaves no room for equipment failure.

So when you told us you needed mower conditioners that would fit in and stand up to your long, relentless work schedules, we heard you.

When you said you wanted a cutting width that was tailor-fitted to the size of your operation, and a choice of roll configurations, we heard you.

And when you asked that the convenience of a center-pivot hitch be made available on a wider range of models, we heard you.

Our response? The broadest line of mower conditioners we've ever offered. With nine models, ranging from 7 ft. 3 in. to 16 ft. in cutting width—including two high-performance disc mower conditioners with new levels of durability for wet fields, dense hay or tangled grass crops.

Our seven conventional models feature uniform-motion sickle drives that not only provide a clean, high-speed cut, but also reduce the forces on knife-drive components for built-in dependability.

And with a center-pivot hitch now available on both disc and conventional models, the flexibility to work from either side of the tractor is just a hydraulic lever away.

The Case International line of mower conditioners. They take a tough job and cut it down to size. See them at your Case IH dealer today. And ask about Total Product Support—our commitment to the service and parts that turn a sale into a true partnership.

U.S. Beef Month To Spur Export Demand

MEXICO CITY, Mexico — Traditionally a slow period for beef sales, the American beef industry is pulling out the stops this month in Mexico to stimulate demand for high-quality U.S. beef. In fact, the U.S. has joined with Mexican industry leaders to proclaim that the month of May is "U.S. Beef Month."

To kick off the nationwide campaign, cattle producer and U.S. Meat Export Federation Chairman Jim Mullins recently welcomed more than 300 Mexican meat industry leaders at a special recognition ceremony in Mexico City. Most of those in attendance will take part in a promotional campaign involving no less than 100 restaurant and 200 supermarket promotions featuring U.S. beef during the month of May.

"This is entirely a cooperative effort," said Mullins. "And with the passage of NAFTA, the timing and marketing environment is just right. Since NAFTA, our beef exports to Mexico are up significantly, and will continue to rise throughout the year."

On January 1, 1994, the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) eliminated import tariffs of 15 and 20 percent on U.S. beef sales to Mexico. The latest USDA report shows U.S. beef exports up 28 percent in volume and 43 percent in value since NAFTA went into effect.

Mullins explained that the U.S. beef industry's extensive promotional and market development effort in May is expected "to carry us through the summer and into September, which is a very festive month in Mexico. We're reaching out to virtually every sector in the Mexican market — importers, retailers, hotels, restaurants, and consumers."

In addition to the supermarket and restaurant promotions, the campaign includes consumer advertising, a national cooking contest with professional chefs, a special culinary school focusing on cooking with high-quality U.S. beef, and a national trade symposium in Mexico City to discuss trade issues and factors affecting future sales of U.S. beef.

"Much of the month-long campaign is funded with producer checkoff dollars," said Mullins. "With beef production on the rise and fed cattle prices slipping back home, it's a good feeling to be involved in something that you know will increase demand for our product and help support cattle prices at the gate."

In 1993, Mexico purchased 80,314 metric tons of U.S. beef and beef variety meats, making Mexico the third largest export customer for the American beef industry. In 1994, the U.S. Meat Export Federation forecasts export volume of U.S. beef and beef variety meats to Mexico will be 93,938 metric tons, with a value of $198.9 million.

Joining Mullins in the ceremony were Harlan Huffman, chairman of the Texas Beef Council; Clark Willingham, first vice president of the National Cattlemen's Association; Philip M. Seng, USMEF president and CEO; and Homero Recio, USMEF vice president-Latin America and the Caribbean.

Science Awareness Dispels Misinformation

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — One day the papers say decaffeinated coffee is OK, the next day the television news says it is bad. One week oat bran cuts cholesterol, the next week it does not. So what do all these conflicting reports about health and nutrition mean?

Awareness about scientific studies can help people understand why research results may seem contradictory or vague, said a nutritionist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Most occurrences in the biological sciences are not easily explained," said Dr. Madeleine Sigman-Grant, assistant professor of food science. "Scientists must analyze and interpret the data they gather and ask themselves what the results mean. What is the significance and who is affected?"

To be useful, results must be interpreted carefully. "Researchers are very cautious about drawing conclusions, and they try to present results and interpretations in carefully worded reports," Sigman-Grant said. "But scientists may differ about what a set of data indicates."

The media use scientific reports, along with interviews, press releases, and comments from other scientists, to compile stories. Unfortunately, journalists, consumer activists, and even scientists themselves may apply results in ways not supported by the original study.

"The popular press may imply that a study's results are final, that we have all the answers," Sigman-Grant said. "When a later report contradicts that story, it's easy to become confused about what all these studies really add up to."

People can jump to mistaken conclusions when reading articles citing scientific reports. "Subtle word differences can dramatically change a story's meaning," said Sigman-Grant. "If a study finds that a behavior 'contributes' to disease risk, it does not mean the behavior causes the disease. If a scientist finds that a food 'reduces the risk' of a disease, it does not mean this food prevents that illness.

"No single study is going to give us a conclusive answer about health and nuutrition issues," said Sigman-Grant. "When the media report on new research results, neither scientists nor the public should assume the results are conclusive."

Research begins with a preconceived notion, or hypothesis, about possible outcomes. "However, invesigators must keep in mind other factors that might also explain their results," Sigman-Grant said. "If they don't explore other possible explanations, their report may be more open to misinterpretation. This could lead to public misconceptions and could damage the researchers' credibility."

If you are concerned about a science-based story in the popular media, Sigman-Grant suggests getting as much information as you can about it. "Read about the research in several different publicaitons to get a variety of interpretations," she said. "You may find the scientist's original report or journal article in the library. Referring to a reputable source of information can help demystify scientific reports."

Take An Education Break: Register For College Days

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — The Cooperative Extension Service, University of Maryland at College Park, is offering interested Maryland residents an opportunity to take an "education break" during College Days 1994.

A four-day learning experience designed for adult students, College Days will be held June 27 - 30 at the Sandy Cove Conference Center near North East (Cecil County). It will feature classes, tours, leisure activities and entertainment in a relaxing environment, off Highway 272, overlooking the Northeast River near the headwaters of the Chesapeake Bay.

More than 70 classes taught by extension faculty and outside experts will be grouped in four focus areas:

• "Focus on Your Finances" will include classes on the Maryland economy, funeral costs, insurance, health policies, investment options and more.

• "Food, Health and You" will offer information on exercise, healthy eating, weight loss, how to read food labels and food drying.

• "Life Along the Bay" will feature classes on oyster and fish farming, saving the bay and weather watching. It also will include treks around Sandy Cove and Turkey Point Lighthouse.

• "Celebrate the Family" will focus on heritage, diversity, relationships, expression, religion and self-nurturing.

Other sessions, available as part of "Classes on the Move," will give participants an opportunity to explore Chesapeake horse country, Plumpton Zoological Park, Sinking Springs Herb Farm, and Longwood Gardens. Golf at Brantwood Golf Course, a bed and breakfast tour and a schooner cruise also will be offered.

After selecting a focus area, participants will choose specific classes that best suit their needs and interests.

Baby-sitting and child-care services will be available for infants, preschoolers, and elementary-age children. A program of games, crafts, stories and other activities will be conducted for various age groups. Family suites are available for overnight accommodations.

Preregistration by June 1 is necessary to ensure lodging, meals, and a place in the chosen focus area. The fee will vary depending on the classes, lodging, and meals selected.

College Days brochures and registration forms are available from local cooperative extension service offices throughout Maryland. Phone numbers are included in county (and Baltimore City) listings in the blue pages of the telephone directory.

Farm Bureau Seeks Top-Notch Young Farmers

ALBANY, N.Y. — Last December, Jim and Deanne Gilligan of Jefferson County were chosen as state winners for New York Farm Bureau's Young Farmer Achievement Award.

Winning the state competition earned the Gilligan's a trip to the national convention. The Gilligans are a regular farm family who run a top-notch operation and participate in agricultural activities.

Once again, New York Farm Bureau is looking for young farmers — single farmers and married couples — to vie for one of this state's most prestigious agricultural honors. Young farmers with a successful farm operation and a record of involvement in Farm Bureau and the agricultural industry can and should apply.

Later this year, three finalists will be chosen. The finalists will receive an expense-paid trip to the NYFB state convention in December, as well as being featured in a slide show to be premiered at the convention. The three finalists also receive a cash award and a video version of the slide show. The winner travels to the national meeting in St. Louis, in January, to compete for countrywide honors. The national winner receives a $500 cash award from Dodge Truck and a 486 computer system.

If you'd like a chance to highlight your farm and your achievements, plan to compete in this year's Young Farmer Award competition. For an application, write to Organization Dept., New York Farm Bureau, Inc., P.O. Box 992, Glenmont, NY 12077-0992, or call Pam Rafferty at (518) 436-8495 or Fred Perrin at (315) 393-7407. The application deadline is July 25.

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

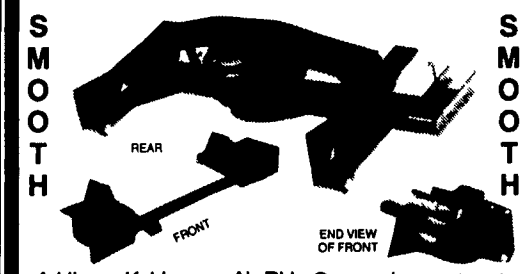
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort.

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system.

Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks. Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy, and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips.

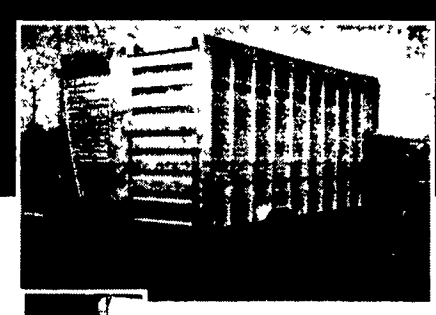
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Historic Building

1½ Story 18'x22' was original Mt. Wolf, Pa. Post Office built around 1840, was moved to Manchester in 1903 and served as a storehouse for Schrolls Store on the square.

Wood frame structure with clapboard siding and slate roof, believed to have been new siding and roof in 1903.

This building was very carefully dismantled, each shingle nail pulled and hand passed and sticked for transport, all nails were pulled from every board and beam. All material has been stored under roof since 1988, when it was moved.

At the time of dismantling this building and another building with same roof and siding material 10'x14' was also removed and is the same as this, thus there will be many more than adequate slate shingles, siding, and framing to replace any bad material.

Set of pictures of exterior and interior before dismantling will assist in rebuilding. All material in good condition.

Also have a foundation print and layout - can connect you with Amish crew that dismantled to help erect.

Ready to be loaded and transported — will take 2 large trucks on trailers to haul. Perfect match for old farm setting to stand alone or attach to an old house, many possibilities.

Complete well preserved package

Corn Growers Continue Commitment To Greater Profits

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Corn-based degradable products are supplying value-added markets from the Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway to the U.S.

Value-added research, supported through corn checkoff efforts, is paving the way for U.S. corn farmers to market their product in unique applications.

One of the ways farmers foster this research is to provide a forum for scientists to gather from all over the world.

The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) will host the Corn Utilization Conference V (CUC V), June 8-10 at the Hyatt Regency Union Station, St. Louis, Mo., where hundreds of scientists from the U.S. and foreign universities, companies, private research institutions and government laboratories will exchange the latest information on a full range of industrial uses for corn.

"This international scientific meeting shows that our farmer-leaders continue to set the pace as Agriculture's Innovators in developing new markets," said Pete Wenstrand, NCGA president and farmer from Essex, Iowa. "We know that research in industrial uses has a bright future for the nation's corn farmers."

Food, seed, and industrial (FSI) uses of corn in the U.S. have become a 1.6 billion bushel a year market for corn growers. Industrial use of corn has grown by 600 million bushels in the past 10 years. NCGA expects FSI to reach 2.4 billion bushels by 2001. Ethanol is a $1 billion market, sweeteners a $1.5 billion market, and cornstarch accounts for $500 million in corn sales.

"Value-added markets like these, which NCGA has been developing for years, are essential for future farm profits and rural development," Wenstrand said.

NCGA has targeted three areas having the greatest potential for short-term commercialization and high-volume usage: polylactic acid biodegradable materials, ethanol production and usage, and corn gluten feed products.

In particular, polylactic acid-based disposable plastics may become "the next premiere corn market," said Anthony Pometto, chair of a CUC V session.

"Polylactic acid biodegradable products have the potential to become a 300 million bushel per year market for corn," said Pometto, who is associate professor of Food Science at Iowa State University, Ames Iowa. "Because a polymer is made completely of lactic acid, it can be a totally degradable material. For example, polylactic acid has been used to make surgical sutures for many years. In that application, the material has proven to be 100 percent degradable. The potential for applications is tremendous."

Biodegradable products which incorporate cornstarch will be the subject of another CUC V session, chaired by J.L. Willett of the USDA-ARS research lab, Peoria, Ill.

"We will hear about major short-term developments since the last conference (1992)," said Willett. "foam articles made out of a combination of cornstarch, water and a few minor ingredients have been developed by a European company. They have already been used at the Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway."

One of the barriers that has hindered the development of corn use in biodegradable plastics has been resolved through standards and regulations. Another CUC V session will review the development of standards and regulations of biodegradable materials. According to Willett, industry has ratified some testing methods and designations for biodegradability. This will allow development and marketing of these materials to move out of the holding pattern and into the marketplace. Corn growers will benefit as corn is used in many of these applications.

Other session topics include food ingredients, ethanol issues, processes in corn refining, developing information networks of new corn uses, and the future of bio-based products. A poster session will allow researchers and entrepreneurs to bring details of everything from the newest scientific processes to the latest retail products to some of the most aggressive and innovative thinkers in the field.

"NCGA will push the outer limits of these markets in 1994," said Wenstrand. "Our utilization programs have been immensely successful to date, CUC V will be no exception."

Pa. Farmers Urged To Sign Up For Soybean Contest

SALISBURY, Md. — Pennsylvania soybean growers are being encouraged to participate in the 1994 Pennsylvania Soybean Yield Contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania Soybean Promotion Board.

In 1993, the first year of the competition, Wilson Hoffman, a Berks County producer, won the first place trophy. His three-acre contest block, planted to DeKalb seed, produced 74.8 bushels an acre.

Contest rules and entry forms may be obtained by writing him at P.O. Box 308, Landisville, PA 17538.

The purpose of the competition, according to Yocum, is "to emphasize and demonstrate the practices necessary to produce maximum economic yields and to encourage the production of high-quality soybeans."

The competition is open to any Pennsylvania farmer who grows five or more acres of soybeans within the state's boundaries. The contest will be restricted to nonirrigated soybeans but there will be no restrictions on varieties, fertilization, row spacing, or other cultural practices.

Farmers are asked to enlist the help of an independent "designated representative," such as their ag agent, to measure the contest block, supervise the harvest, and measure the yield.

Farmers are asked to file with Yocum a notice of intent to participate no later than Aug. 15.

In addition to the yield champion, farmers coming in second and third also will receive trophies and all contestants who log yields of 60 bushels an acre or better will receive engraved plaques awarding them membership in the 60-Bushel Club.

In 1993, about 50 farmers requested entry forms but only 17 participated in the competition, probably because of the poor harvest conditions which developed during the summer and into the fall.

Yocum and the members of the Pennsylvania Soybean Promotion Board are hoping to expand participation this year.

Second place winner in 1993 was Samuel M. Conley of Lancaster County with a yield of 71.4 bushels an acre. Charles Chilcoat of York County was third with a yield of 69.4 bushels.

The average of the 17 entries was 58.4 bushels an acre.

"Binkley & Hurst Bros., Your Rotary Hoe Dealer"

Rediscover The Rotary Hoe!

Farmers rediscover new uses for an old tool

Land hoe!

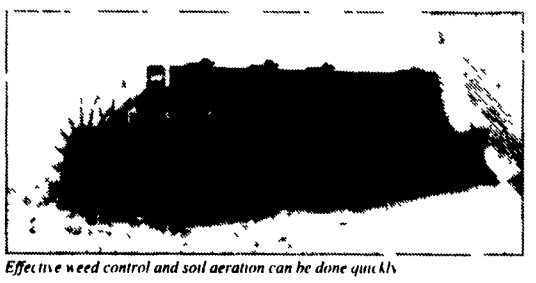
Farmers across the country are taking a new look at an old tool, the rotary hoe Using a rotary hoe is not only a great defense against weeds, it can also help meet compliance by bringing residue back to the soil surface

Some innovative farmers have already proven the value of the high-speed rotary hoe in aerating their reduced tillage fields before planting Used ahead of planting, the rotary hoe breaks the seal or crust that may have formed in the soil This enables the soil to dry and warm up faster to give you a day or two jump in planting It also creates a mellow, uniform seedbed for better emergence

Yetter has designed new models to work specifically in heavy crop residue These new models operate in row crops or bedded plants with equal ease and without implement modifications

In many areas, growers are finding rotary hoes can help reduce wind erosion, while others are using rotary hoes to incorporate broadcasted wheat and other small grains Taking existing technology and expanding its usefulness is what makes innovators successful

The usefulness of rotary hoes is not limited to farm fields You might be surprised, but Yetter Rotary Hoes are being used by ski resorts to break up the crusted snow on downhill ski runs



Effective weed control and soil aeration can be done quickly

However, even with all these new ideas, don't overlook why the rotary hoe was originally built Each pass of a rotary hoe can go a long way in reducing herbicide applications by incorporating the herbicide into the weed root zone to enhance its effectiveness In fact, many preplant herbicide labels call for rotary hoeing if the weather is dry five to 14 days after application Check your herbicide labels for details

If You Need A Rotary Hoe, See Binkley & Hurst Bros. For Immediate Delivery!

REMEMBER THE 3 LAWS OF HOOBER RECONDITIONED AXIAL-FLOW COMBINES...

LAW #1- (17) Years Old is not equal to (≠) WORN OUT...
Because of the simple design of the CASE IH Axial Flow Combines, they can be reconditioned by HOOBER'S expert combine mechanics to like-new condition, so they provide 2nd and 3rd owners years of satisfactory and profitable operation.

LAW #2- (4,000) HOURS PLUS (+) HOOBER RECONDITIONING EQUALS (=) YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE...
(4,000) Hours on a conventional combine usually means they'll be too much trouble to be dependable. Axial-Flow combines with (4,000) hours, reconditioned by HOOBER'S, have proven to run for years when purchased by farmers in PA, MD, DE and NJ

LAW #3- A CASE IH AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SERVICED BY EXPERT HOOBER COMBINE MECHANICS EQUALS (=) LITTLE OR NO DOWNTIME DURING HARVEST...
When Hoober's expert combine mechanics service and repair AXIAL-FLOW combines in the off-season, they run dependably through the season.

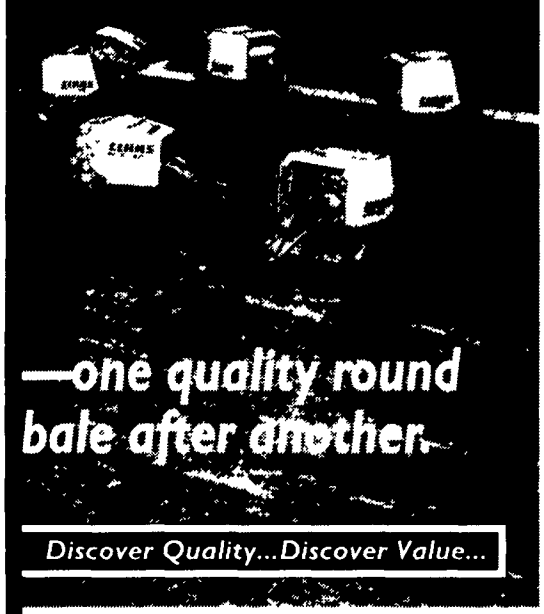
CLAAS® Rollant round balers give you what you want



—one quality round bale after another.

Discover Quality...Discover Value...

The Rollant 66 makes fast work of 4'x5' bales. Its unique two-stage pick-up and close tines produce a clean, efficient harvest in less time. Rollatex netting wraps a bale in 10 seconds or less, and double-twine wraps it up in just 20

The Rollant 46 introduced CLAAS's innovative fixed bale chamber to the marketplace. This versatile baler handles all farm operations from dry hay to silage. Nobody produces a better 4'x4' bale.

The Rollant 42 was designed for family livestock operations. This economical investment produces weather-tight 4'x4' bales for the highest nutrient content possible.

CLAAS bales mean nutrient-filled edible hay, low spoilage, and high crude protein retention

Each Rollant offers the innovative chamber, low-profile pick-up, and world class dependability. And they all share CLAAS's international reputation for low maintenance, durability and long-life

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

Modern lubricants are about as good as they are going to get. So IXL solves the problem of friction and wear by treating the metal itself.

Treated metal parts are smoother, tougher, heat and wear resistant. More importantly, the friction characteristic of the metal itself has been reduced by more than 70%! This allows lubricants to do their jobs better and last longer. Which means your equipment runs better and lasts longer—much longer; as much as two or three times the manufacturer's expected "normal" life!

HOW DOES IXL ANTI-FRICTION METAL TREATMENT ACTUALLY WORK?

Simply stated, IXL is a pressure treatment for steel. Picture iron or steel as a sponge soaking up IXL when heat and pressure are applied for a period of time. IXL is actually attracted to the heat and pressure found in your engine, transmission, differential, wheel bearings and other working parts of your vehicle. The more heat and pressure developed by these parts, the faster and deeper the treatment soaks into them.

Used as directed, the IXL treatment is longlasting and there's no resin coating or bonded film which can peel or rub off; just bare metal with IXL soaked into it. There's no buildup on the metal surfaces and no change of tolerances. The treatment even remains effective if the metal is heated red hot—way beyond the point where your lubricants have failed.

Friction created by the working parts of your vehicle is always wearing away at the metal surfaces. After treatment with IXL the friction of these surfaces is reduced by 70% or more providing "bare metal" protection and allowing your lubricants to do their jobs much more efficiently. Since friction and wear are a continuous process, we recommend (based on actual use) that you always use a little more IXL when adding or changing oil. As a result, friction and wear are always kept at a minimum. And the metal parts continue to be treated while they do their work.

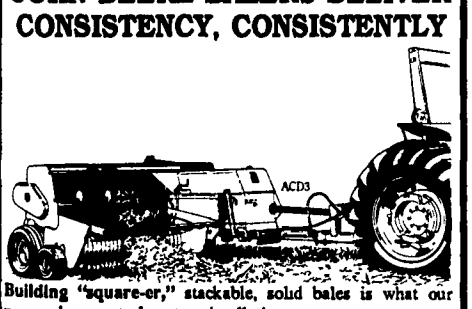
JOHN DEERE BALERS DELIVER CONSISTENCY, CONSISTENTLY



Building "square-er," stackable, solid bales is what our proven hay control system is all about.

Once hay is inside the baler, a continuous-flow, floating auger moves the crop into a tapered chamber precompressing the hay before it reaches the bale chamber. This makes John Deere bales denser, and more consistent. A difference you'll notice when stacking and feeding bale after John Deere bale

Introducing...

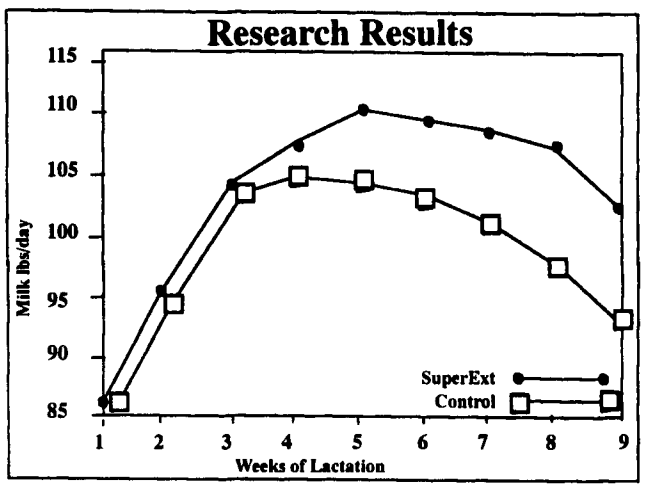
PURINA

SUPER-EXT

A dairy feed that could make your cows more productive, while also improving their feed conversion and breeding efficiency.

SUPER-EXT is a blend of high fat nuggets and pellets specially designed and manufactured by Purina to deliver feed quality, nutrient density and super palatability. The nutrient-rich blend is placed with complete nutrition and is highly palatable.

In field trials, cows fed SUPER-EXT produced an average of 6.7 pounds more milk per cow per day, while improving or maintaining milk composition. And while porduction increased, the cows that were fed SUPER-EXT maintained or improved their body-condition scores after freshening and were more-feed efficient.



Research Results

	Milk	Milk lbs/day	Milk Protein lbs/day
Control Average Production	100	3.24	2.83
Super-Ext Average Production	107	3.47	2.86
Average Improvement Per Cow	+7	+.23	+.03

Consider All The Benefits Of SUPER-EXT

- Increased milk production
- Good milk composition
- Good body condition
- Improved feed efficiency
- Improved breeding efficiency
- More income opportunity!
